Fat Means Risk.
We Need Politeness.
Barnum's White Elephant.

SANDOW, the best known German strong man, with biceps measuring 19 inches around, followed Breitbart, the other strong man to the grave. The latter died young, Sandow at 58.

Millions of puny men will outlive them by 40 years because they were not such strong men.

It is dangerous to put too much nervous vitality into building muscle. A thin body, well nourished by good, healthy blood, without carrying around of useless tissue, that is the ideal, especially as age comes on.

A fat old man is a bad insurance risk.

TOWN in New Jersey wants telephone girls to stop saying "thank you" when a number is mentioned and simply repeat the number. Many are ready to help the telephone companies how to run the telephone business, possibly the operators that answer calls all day long know more than the casual citizen. A telephone girl's "thank you" is at least an often repeated lesson in politeness, and this is a country that needs it.

LONDON is building $12,000,000 worth of new theaters, providing 50,000 seats, but no theater as big or as "fancy" as movie houses. The British are cheered by the fact that these theaters will make money for British producers, as British-made, not the Hollywood product. The British and King George, "I recommend British-made movies." It will not do any harm, the British-made movie improved. Barnum's white elephant, it is said, would almost anything in the world except British coffee. It did not seem to drink that "because he couldn't like it."

LORD OXFORD and Asquith defend the value of a university education with good right, for his father and his own son rank among England's distinguished scholars.

But what is good meat for one man means indigestion for another.

Of some men universities make snobs, of others conceited idiots. A few, like Milton, Ruskin, Asquith, able to endure university training, are much the better for it.

But don't forget this! If Shakespeare had had the education that Milton had, there would be no Shakespeare on your shelf. You may say of universities what the French say of travel: "It forms youth when it does not deform it."

THE King, at "Glorious Goodwood races, where the Duke entertained him at Goodwood House, used at table the plate that Napoleon used before the battle of Waterloo."

The interesting thing is this: After the racing crowd one ton of birthday cake and 15,000 quarts of liquor were sent to the race track.

Two thousand pounds of cake, 15,000 quarts of whisky remind one of the inebriated British gentleman who, reading the Rubaiyat about coming to the lines about "A book of verse underneath the bough, a loaf of bread and thou," said hastily, "No, no bread; two jugs of wine."

VON HINDENBURG, head of the German republic, a powerful man, wants on his grave a block of stone, and nothing written on it except the name Von Hindenburg.

Fortunate the man who can give such orders and know that the stone will mean something for a few years at least.

ADVOCATES of the decimal system for weights, measures, money, etc., say it should be taught to the children in the kindergarten. They can understand it perfectly. This is perfectly true, but, unfortunately, full-grown business men cannot be taught to change their methods and install the metric system in place of our stupid time-wasting lack of system in weights and measures.

PROFESSOR HEMPL, of Budapest, is reported to have perfected a new cure for hydrophobia, better than the Pasteur system. In one year 3,063 persons bitten by mad cats and dogs were cured, and every one of them, except four, within a few days. That's good news, but it would be better to wipe out hydrophobia as the British have done. Every dog is kept in quarantine for the necessary length of time. The last hydrophobia case was known in England until recently, when a man brought a dog through and escaped the quarantine, but started a small epidemic.

AN "art society" of New York and other societies, to lift the height of buildings, Art societies of the ordinary subtleties objected to a building but and would have been horrified at the thought of a factory but. American architects and builders should find a way so that they can build as high as one like high. After that limit is reached enough to limit the height of buildings.

Vets to Honor Pals

BUDDIES IN WAR AND BASEBALL

Joe Harris, left, and John Miljus, right, two stars of the Pirates, who will be honored by their former buddies of the Eightieth Division before the start of the Pittsburgh-St. Louis game at Forbes Field tomorrow.

80TH DIVISION REUNION IN FULL SWING

They are here, these veterans of the Eightieth Division, hundreds strong, come to talk over the war. By automobile, train and airplane they have poured into Pittsburgh from all parts of Pennsylvania, Ohio and the Virginias, and even from farther away, until today at the registration booth in Moose Temple more than 3,000 were on the official list of delegates.

The tenth annual reunion of the Eightieth Veterans' Association started off with a bang. The early arrivals cheered each other, they shouted their pride in the colors they bore to victory through the hail of death they faced in the Meuse-Argonne battlefront, and when their war time leaders appeared on the stage at Moose Temple, it was like that momentous eleventh of November of nine years ago.

With proud and victorious tread they marched and rode from railroad stations, highways and airports, reading their glory in a city's eyes.

Pittsburghers who saw them amidst the blare of bands, marching through the streets, felt the thrill of war days, but except for a fortunate 5,000, they missed the climax of the day. That was when a tanned, gray-mustached man of 65 walked out on the stage at the temple—Lloyd M. Brett, brigadier general, retired, the Eightieth's" war-time leader.

Cheering wildly, they would not let him speak. Three times he started to thank them for the fight they made to force Congress to give him the recognition his service entitled,

FORMER BASEBALL STAR DIES BY AUTO HERE

The body of a man killed Saturday in a North Side automobile accident was identified this afternoon as that of A. J. McCarthy, former major league baseball player, at one time with the Detroit, American League, team.

McCarthy was an outfielder and was with Detroit in 1902. He was working as a house-to-house canvasser when he was hit by a machine at Ridge and Irwin avenues. He died in the Presbyterian hospital.

The identification was made by John K. Scholl, of 3 Ridge avenue.

Detroit police were notified of the identification, but they have been unable to locate McCarthy's relatives. Unless the body is claimed by Saturday it will be cremated.

McCray Arrives Home

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Warren T. McCray, former Governor of Indiana, released on parole from the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, arrived in Indianapolis this noon.

The train was stopped about one mile east of the Union Station to permit McCray to detrain there and avoid a crowd of several hundred persons at the station.

John Moorman, of Knox, who accompanied McCray from Atlanta, said it was McCray's wish to return to his home as quietly as possible. He and his son-in-law, William H. Evans, entered an automobile and immediately were driven to Evans' home.

Two Held On Dry Charge

Accused of selling prescriptions for whisky to be used at "parties" and without making a physical examination, two New Castle physicians were held for trial in Federal court under $500 bail each by a United States commissioner today. They are Dr. Z. W. Stutz and Dr. G. P. Prioletti. A hearing in the case of Dr. Edwin S. Cooper, also of New Castle, was continued to September 17 for additional testimony.

1ST WARD CHARGES FIZZLE

Charges of wholesale illegality in the First Ward assessment lists fizzled today when the complainants failed to appear before the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes to substantiate their allegations.

After no one appeared to press the charges, when the board resumed the hearing this morning a resolution was adopted declaring the board "must conclude that the allegations were made without warrant and that the assertion made by this board that the petition was filled with political bunk has therefore been publicly substantiated."

This morning's session followed a stormy meeting last night, when Roy D. Schooley, of the board, clashed with Attorney John E. Laughlin when the latter declined either to present evidence showing illegalities in the lists or to admit he had no such evidence.

"You tried to put this board in a hole, and now you've discovered you can't do it," said Schooley. "If you've made a mistake, you ough to admit it."

Schooley then began reading the list of 1,700 or more names against which charges had been made, asking, as each name was read, if anything was wrong with it. His question was not answered in any case.

"There is no use wasting time," said Laughlin. "We're not going any farther now."

The First Ward fuss started when Attorney Laughlin filed a petition in court asking that nearly 2,000 names be stricken from the lists. The board filed a demurrer, sustained by the courts, which ruled that the complaints should be made to the board. John Egan, representing Aldermen A. M. Maloney, a candidate to succeed himself, then filed with the board a list of 1,700 alleged fraudulent names together with a written request for a

BATTLE ON FOR 1ST PLACE

Back home and with first place as the prize in the event of victory, the Pirates today were anxious for the scheduled encounter with the Cubs at Forbes Field. With a trifle less than a full game separating the two flag contenders, a Pittsburgh triumph would put the Bushwhackers in first place by a single point—but in first place, nevertheless. In view of the fact that the Cubs were six full games ahead of the Freebooters about two weeks ago, the fine position of the Buccaneers can easily be appreciated. On the other hand there is

ST. LOUIS-N. Y. FLIERS TO MAKE STOP HERE

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Albert Von Hoffman, publisher, and party of four, left Lambert-St. Louis Field at 6 a. m. today in his Ryan cabin monoplane on a business trip to New York City, expecting to make the flight of nearly 1,000 miles in 10 hours. Stops were to be made at Columbus, O., and Pittsburgh, with Teterboro Field, N. J., as terminus.

REDLOES ISLAND, SEPT. 1.—LIBERTY KEEPS AN EYE ON SPEEDERS OF THE WORLD'S AIRWAYS:

"What gets me is the way these ocean speeders complain about delay. Here comes that monoplane with a woman in it. That's right, lady, first turn to your left for Canada. They must be English, runnin' on the left side of the road. Hey, there, keep to the right; this is America! Princess or somebody like that, ain't she? Sixty-two, they say.

"What's this? Hey! Where do you guys think you're going? Didn't you see that sign? Well, anyway, I got their number. Sir John Carling, eh? Goin' from London, Ont., to London, Eng.

"That reminds me. Them tourists skidded past me the other day, too. That's a fast pair, Brock and Schlee. Over in Turkey already. But I'll get them on the way back.

"I was looking up the road to Rome in my map last night and believe me, when Bertand comes along in Old Glory I'll just point straight toward Mussolini's home town. They say Bertand's going today.

"Look over there. Another pair just hopped off. What's that sign on her? Oh, yes, Winsor, Canada, to England. A body'd think England was some place to go to."

Gen. Brett Praises "Sun-Tele"

BRIG. GEN. LLOYD M. BRETT

"The Sun-Telegraph cannot be praised too highly for the wonderful way its reporters and photographers have 'covered' the reunion of the Eightieth Division," Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett, war-time commander of the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry Brigade, here attending the tenth annual reunion of the Eightieth Division Veterans' Association, said today. Gen. Brett carefully read late editions of Wednesday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, containing many pictures of veterans. "We appreciate greatly the help this paper has given and I am sure," Gen. Brett said, "that those of our comrades unable to attend will enjoy reading about the reunion and seeing pictures of it in the Sun-Telegraph.

FEAR FLYING PRINCESS LOST IN FOG; CANADIAN PLANES HOP FOR ENGLAND

London to London Hop Starts — Pilots Plan Halt Tonight

LONDON, Ontario, Sept. 1.—Capt. Terry Tulley and Lieut. James Metcalf hopped off for the second time from London, Ontario, at 6:35 a. m., planning to land at Harbor Grace for refueling before attempting the ocean hop to the capital of the British Empire. Four hours later they had passed over Toronto and Kingston, Ontario.

Capt. Tully and Lieut. Metcalf planned to reach the Newfoundland coast before dark tonight and wait until morning to resume their flight.

The second attempt of the London plane was witnessed by a vast crowd, despite the early hour. It was larger even than on Monday, when the Sir John Carling was forced back after five hours by bad weather over Lake Ontario.

Tragedy was narrowly averted this morning when a plane carrying a news reel cameraman swooped down on the Crumlin Field at the very moment the Sir John Carling started down the runway. Neither pilot saw the other plane and a crash seemed imminent.

A mad rush in an automobile across the field succeeded in stopping the London plane until the intruder was out of the danger zone.

The Sir John Carling carried 350 gallons of gasoline, far more than enough to take the plane to Harbor Grace, but considered insufficient for a non-stop flight across the Atlantic.

Windsor to Windsor Plane Hops Again to Span Sea

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The monoplane Royal Windsor, bearing Phil Wood and C. A. (Duke) Schiller hopped off from Walkersville Field at 10:18 today on a non-stop flight with Windsor, England, as its objective. At 2:15 this afternoon the plane had passed Oshawa, Ontario.

A wreath bearing the words 'Nongesser-Coli" was placed in the plane by the flyers. They plan to drop it into the ocean as a memorial to the French flyers who attempted a westward flight across the Atlantic. No definite place for the dropping of the wreath has been set.

"Don't forget me—Helen," was written on the plane with chalk by Mrs. Wood shortly before her husband, who will serve as navigator, clambered to his place. Miss Ada Greer, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Schiller's fiancee, presented the flyers with a toy teddy bear as a flight mascot.

WINDSOR, Ontario, Sept. 1.—Merry confidence characterized the final ceremonies just before the take-off of the Royal Windsor this morning.

While the Wright motor of the Stinson-Detroiter was being warmed up, C. A. Schiller and Phil Wood posed for pictures for nearly 15 minutes.

Mrs. Wood, a former Follies beauty; Miss Ada Greer, Schiller's fiancee; Gar Wood, brother of the plane's navigator, and his wife, were present.

Just before the take-off, Schiller reached into his pocket and drew forth a roll of American bills. Handing them to Miss Greer, he said:

"I can't spend this in England; you might as well have the use of it."

Woman's Plane Was to Have Reached Coast At Dawn

By LESLIE ROBERTS,
International News Staff Correspondent.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 1.—With all Canada, and the rest of the world for that matter eagerly awaiting word today of the whereabouts of the flying Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim and her two pilots, Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Col. Frederick F. Minchin, every means of communication was brought into play in an attempt to locate the adventurous aviators.

At 10:35, eastern standard time, this morning, government officials of the Marine Department and aerial experts computed the ratios of time and distance, making allowances for head winds, deflections from course and other factors entering into the flight of the St. Raphael from Upavon, England, to Ottawa, Canada, and concluded that some news of the plane should have been picked up along the North Atlantic coast hours ago—as early as 7:30 this morning.

But late this afternoon no news had come. A roundup of all the wireless stations along the east coast was made before noon. None had received any word of the plane.

Some evidence of fear for the safety of the fliers became manifest, but for the most part officials remained optimistic.

HEADWINDS CAUSE DELAY

The expert computations are based on the hypothesis that the fliers have remained on their original course. Those who confidently believe they are safe say their speed

HUNDREDS SWELL LIST OF VISITING VETERANS

END SEARCH FOR DOLE FLIERS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The navy's search for the missing transpacific fliers of the Dole race, six men and one girl, has virtually been completed, it was said at the navy today.

Rear Admiral John A. McDonald, commandant at Honolulu made a report to the Navy today that offered little or no hope that the few remaining moves will produce any but negative results.

The R-type submarines and nine sweepers which have been combing the waters adjacent to the Hawaiian Islands have completed their work, Admiral McDonald reported.

WOMAN'S PLANE

may have been slowed down by stiff head winds or that they may have been forced to "zigzag" in their course.

Had the 62-year-old princess and her two companions swerved to the south of their plotted course, they would have struck a rather dense area of wireless and shipping, but, had they swerved to the north, they may have been carried over the bleak northern coast of Newfoundland and the mountainous hinterland, where facilities for communication are such that it would require a considerable period before news that they had been sighted had penetrated to the outer world.

The Canadian government meanwhile, stood prepared to go to the assistance of the aviators should they be found to be beleaguered anywhere on this side of the ocean. Exactly what the character of this assistance would be will depend upon the conditions at the time.

It was computed at 5 o'clock this afternoon that the St. Raphael might still have sufficient gas in her tanks for seven hours' flying.

By International News Service.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 1.—A thick fog prevailed over the Atlantic off the Newfoundland coast today, placing a dangerous obstacle in the way of the British plane, St. Raphael, which is en route for Canada from England, with Capt. Leslie Hamilton, Lieut. Col. Frederick F. Minchin and the Princess Loewenstein-Wertheim aboard.

Shortly before noon the visibility was very poor, and a cold northeast wind had been blowing since dawn. This wind, however, was favorable for the fliers.

The steamship Silvia, which arrived at mid-morning, reported no trace of the plane.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Inquiry at the air ministry at 11 a. m. London time (6 a. m. Pittsburgh time) brought the statement that nothing had been heard of the monoplane St. Raphael since around midnight (7 p. m. Pittsburgh daylight time when an unofficial message, believed to have come from some steamship reported the plane going strong. The position was not stated.

The air official added that they hoped to have some news pretty soon.

One meager message, from an unidentified source, reported the St. Raphael flying strong after it had been in the air 13 hours.

The daring princess, who decided to make the flight at the first transatlantic woman passenger at the last minute. She is aged 62, widow of a German prince killed during the Spanish-American War while fighting for Spain. The princess has been a flying enthusiast since 1914 and is a pilot herself. Silence, now, hides her fate, possibly similar to that which has befallen Miss Doran.

COUNCILMAN'S CAR IN CRASH

Four persons were injured when a truck collided with a machine driven by Councilman James E. Quinlan of Hays, at Sarah and South Twenty-second streets, at 11 o'clock today.

The injured are Mrs. Elizabeth Felix, 38, of 211 Baldwin street, Hays, her two children, Dolores, 4, and James, 6, and Rudolph Knox, 40, of 659 Baldwin street, all of whom were in the car with Councilman Quinlan. Mrs. Felix and the children were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, and Knox was taken home.

Quinlan and Walter Watson, 42, a Negro, of 240 Wadsworth street, driver of the truck, were arrested.

FLYING SERVICE SEEKS CHARTER

HARRISBURG, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The Public Service Commission today received its first application for the incorporation of a flying service. The applicant was the Gettysburg Flying Service, which proposed to carry passengers between Gettysburg and Washington and on sight-seeing trips over the famous battlefield.

Later the company plans to give a state-wide airplane service, carrying passengers and freight, and with landing fields at Harrisburg, York, Gettysburg, Williamsport, Scranton, Sunbury, Wilkes-Barre, Chambersburg, Bloomsburg and Bellefonte.

Sore Tooth Delays Cronkhite's Arrival At 80th Reunion

An abscessed tooth kept Major General Adelbert Cronkhite from the opening session of the Eighteenth Division Veterans' reunion last night. He wired William L. Fleming, general chairman, that he expects to get here before the fete ends.

The boys expect him. Today they told of how, when shrapnel and gas were causing havoc at Nantillois, "Cronkie" developed a severe affliction of sore feet. One morning he came out sans shoes, and raised "cain" because a new bridge wasn't finished.

"Don't mind this blankety-blank (censored) shell-fire," he said on that occasion. A big shell exploded near him.

"Confound these feet," he remarked nonchalantly, "let's go ahead boys."

They went.

AUSTRALIAN CHILDREN BEING TAUGHT BY MAIL

Correspondence classes for children living beyond the reach of schools have been organized in Western Australia. Enrollment in correspondence schools has increased in eight years from 54 pupils to 1,236, with promise of further growth. A year's course is covered in 70 lessons. Text-books and note paper on which the lessons are to be worked are supplied free by the education department.

DIPLOMAT, GIRL BROKE ON LARK HE'S JAILED

By Universal Service.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 1.—Romulo Rosales, who claims he is a member of the Nicaraguan diplomatic corps in Washington, was lodged in jail here facing charges of having violated the Mann act.

He and Miss Elizabeth Morton Hales, 17, alleged to have been his companion on a trip from Washington to this city, were arrested when the girl sought employment as a waitress.

Confirming her story to authorities, in which she said that she had pawned her jewelry, Rosales said:

"In my country a girl wouldn't ask for work to help a fellow out. Nor would she sell her jewels to finance an embarrassing situation."

ADMITS SLAYING, SAY POLICE

Acting Lieutenant Frank Dodson, of the homicide squad, announced today that Antonio Politano, 36, of Wilson, a suspect in the murder of Rocco Fenia in Hazelwood, had confessed to the slaying of Vito Capodanno, Wilmington, Del., restaurant proprietor, last February 28. Politano is one of seven persons arrested after Fenia had been shot down in the kitchen of his Roma way home, Friday.

He turned finally to those on the stage beside him. "There are my boys," he said, and could go no further. Then he sat down.

SPEECHES

The meeting in Moose Temple last night was the first formal gathering of the veterans in their tenth annual reunion. There were formal speeches from Councilman James F. Malone, representing Mayor Charles H. Kline; T. P. Gaylord, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and William L. Fleming, general chairman of the convention. Capt. Carlo D. Cella, president of the association, and Gen. Brett responded.

Today the convention gets down to business with a series of committee meetings. At 10 o'clock four buses left the Temple for the H. J. Heinz plant filled principally with wives of delegates. After lunch there they were scheduled to go, with hundreds of delegates, for a boat ride down the Ohio River.

The official banquet of the reunion will be held tonight in the Fort Pitt Hotel, after which a dance will be staged in the Moose Temple Auditorium.

PAWNED WATCH THEFT CLUE

As he reclaimed a watch left in pawn in a Wylie avenue loan office, James Lonetti, 25, Evergreen road, was arrested by city detectives today in connection with a jewelry robbery in Rochester.

Last July a window in the "Here & Allen jewelry store, Rochester, was broken and $1,800 worth of jewelry stolen. The watch which Lonetti claimed today is said to be part of the loot.

ASPHALT PLANTS LACK FUNDS

Unless additional funds are provided by Council, the city's asphalt plants, employing 225 men, will close October 1, 60 days earlier than was anticipated. The plants received an appropriation of $400,000 for this year and approximately $60,000 additional is needed if the plants are to complete the work scheduled. This information is contained in a report transmitted to Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang by Assistant Superintendent T. L. Pillow, of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers. The report lists 45 streets that have been resurfaced, including 23 not placed on the regular schedule but substituted because of the urgent need for improvement.

CLEANERS-DYERS AT WAR HERE; TRIO HELD

The cleaners' and dyers' war broke out into the open today when three leaders of the Wholesale Cleaners and Dyers' Association of Western Pennsylvania were held for court on charges of conspiracy by Magistrate George H. Ingham in Central Police Court.

They were I. J. Roth, 6257 Greenview place; Louis B. Cohen, 5136 Callowhill street, and Jack Diamond, 525 Melwood street.

They were prosecuted by independent cleaners, who complained that a combine was in force against them and that they were forced to send their custom to Shrago.

Harry Freidman of the Liberty Cleaning Company testified that when he refused to join the wholesalers' group Diamond threatened him with, "All right, we'll do the same here that we did in Chicago."

LINK AUTO THIEVES WITH GANG MURDER

A web of evidence entangling them in the gang murder of James La Rosa on Sunday is being woven by police about Joseph Ryruvala, 32; John Dalta, 28, and George Palio, 30, arrested in Detroit with a stolen Pittsburgh automobile.

The automobile, owned by Dr. D. H. Donaldson, 5614 Howe street, was stolen in front of Mercy Hospital, two squares from the scene of the crime, about the hour at which La Rosa was slain.

The prisoners, according to word from Detroit, admit the theft of the car, but refuse to waive extradition. They deny the murder.

La Rosa, or "Jimmy the Rose," was picked off as he entered his home, near 1538 Fifth avenue, by gangsters hidden in the Rod and Gun clubrooms. Detectives, at first believing one man responsible, found evidence that three men had been in the club. Then came the news of the auto theft by three men and the detectives began connecting the theft with the murder. The arrest of the three in Detroit followed.

Cronkhite's Orders Praising Eightieth

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1927

P. C. 80th Division, A. E. F.
30th September, 1918.

TO THE OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN OF THE 80TH DIVISION.

I wish to express to you my deep appreciation of the great work accomplished by you, in your first active operation.

Your work has received the highest commendation from our Corps Commander, and his confidence in your military prowess is evidenced by the demands he has made upon your services.

It is too soon officially to mention individual deeds, but you may rest assured that due honors will be recommended in all cases of personal distinction.

Remember, as well, that whatever hardships you may have to suffer, the Divisional Staff, whose duty is to provide for you, have done and will continue to do, all that is within the limits of possibility, to lessen your burdens. Give them your thanks.

You will soon be called upon for another push.

Remember that you made the Army Objective on your first call.

Remember that the 80th Division can never stop short of the Army Objective, wherever it may be placed.

The enemy is faltering, his allies are deserting him. His infantry will not stand before your onrush.

Continue to smother his machine gunners by skillful maneuvering, hit his line hard and push through.

GET HIM ON THE RUN, AND WE SHALL EAT OUR THANKSGIVING DINNER IN PEACE.

A. Cronkhite
Major General.

P. C. HAMILTON,
7th October, 1918.

TO THE OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE 159TH BRIGADE:

The Division Commander wishes to express his great appreciation of the highly important success gained by General Jamerson's 159th Brigade, and Major Montague's attached Battalion of the 319th Infantry.

Continually under effective artillery fire on your flank, as well as machine gun fire from your front and flanks, you nevertheless returned again and again to the attack, until your objective was gained and held.

Your success has earned the repeated congratulations of your Corps Commander as well as the thanks of your Country.

A. Cronkhite
Major-General, Commanding.

WOODSIDE HITS M'GOVERN TACTICS

The move to prevent the name of Robert G. Woodside from appearing on the ballot was characterized by him as a "frantic" effort on the part of Controller C. C. McGovern to remain in office without opposition in a statement issued last night.

"By resorting to court action, based upon a mere technicality by which he seeks to remove all opposition against him, the present County Controller has at last come into the open," said Woodside.

Declaring that the present Controller is "a professional obstructionist," Woodside said the voters now see him "as one ready to adopt any measure, regardless of public consequence, in order to hold the office to which he was appointed but never elected."

Consider Deportation Of Earl Carroll

By Universal Service.

ATLANTA, Sept. 1—Federal immigration officers here are investigating the nationality of Earl Carroll, New York theatrical producer, sent to the Atlanta Federal prison after conviction of perjury in the Federal courts in connection with the famous "bath tub party" investigation in New York, with the possibility that he may be deported, following disclosures on the prison record that Carroll's parents were born in Ireland, according to a statement by M. A. Coykendall, an immigration officer.

Answering questions for the prison record when he was incarcerated here last June Carroll told his questioner that his parents were born in Ireland. Since that time Carroll told the immigration officials he was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., and this statement, Coykendall said, is being checked up by the immigration department.

Because of exemplary conduct ever since the noted theatrical producer has been here he has been sent to the "honor farm" at Pantherville, in De Kalb county, adjoining the county in which the federal prison is located. Carroll will be eligible for parole in October after serving a third of his sentence.

Leslie Hamilton and the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim in their attempted transatlantic flight, he would immediately start for America. If, on the other hand, word comes that the British fliers have reached their goal, he and Hinchcliffe will set out in the Columbia on an easterly direction, flying as long as their gasoline holds out.

T. Harold Kincade, Wright aeronautical corporation expert, made an inspection of the Columbia today and pronounced it in condition for an immediate flight. The Imperial Airways, Ltd., is making all arrangements with the air ministry for the proposed hop-off from Cranwell field.

WOMAN, 93, DIES AT FREEPORT

Freeport's oldest citizen, Mrs. Rebecca Murphy, 93, last of 11 children of pioneer settlers, died yesterday at her home. She had been in good health until two months ago. Her grandfather, Capt. Samuel Murphy, was a personal friend of George Washington. He received a grant of more than 200 acres at Freeport, including the Murphy homestead. Capt. Murphy served in the Revolution and French and Indian wars.

Your Smile and Your Teeth

Don't Believe Your Teeth are "Naturally" Off Color

DENTAL science has found a new way to lighten cloudy teeth. A way that, this often changes a person's whole appearance. Your teeth, it's been learned, are not naturally off color, simply coated with a film that absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc.

You can feel that film now with your tongue, a slippery sort of coating. It is there largely because your present dentifrice is failing in its duty. Ordinary dentifrices don't fight film successfully.

Now, a new type dentifrice has been discovered. A film-removing paste called Pepsodent. Famous $100,000 stars of the movies use it before going on a scene. That's why movie smiles are so gleaming white.

Leading dentists urge it because it protects the teeth and arms the gums. Film breeds bacteria that invite tooth troubles and pyorrhea. It impairs your teeth, your gums, and makes your smile unattractive. Clear it off. See the amazing difference made. Get Pepsodent at any drug store. Or send the coupon for test tube free.

Well Groomed Hair

With vacation weather passing so rapidly, it is well to turn one's thoughts to the approaching social season. Well-groomed hair is, of course, a necessity.

And if you've allowed your hair to become streaked with sunburn . . . or if it is turning gray . . . even if it is just going through a natural, but disagreeable period of ill-health, when it seems to lack life and luster . . . you may be grateful for the temporary or permanent relief from care afforded by a transformation.

Delightfully light and comfortable pieces of hair are being made these days, naturally wavy, in all shades, and incapable of being detected. Priced from $25.00 to $75.00.

A Timely Special—

Black Satin Crepe $1.95 yard

An exceptionally fine quality of this popular, versatile silk, which is being so much stressed for fall. If one is slim enough, the satin side is most smart for the greater part of the dress, with trimmings of crepe. For models using diagonal inserts and geometric applications there is no more suitable fabric. And a number of the new fall patterns have been designed especially for use with satin crepe. 39 inches wide.

The Postoffice Department began ... experimental operating of air mail ... between New York and Washington, D. C., on May 15, 1918. Army planes were utilized and ordinary first class mail was carried.

It was soon demonstrated that the great advantage of air mail service was not ever short routes, but over long distances, because of the time lost in landing and handling.

The New York-San Francisco service was launched in 1921. At first mail was carried by air only during daylight. When beacons were installed along the route to guide the airmen at night, night flying started.

Under the schedule of the transcontinental system, an air line distance of 2,627 miles, planes leave New York daily at 11 a. m., and arrive at San Francisco at 4:30 p. m. the following day—29½ hours service.

95 PER CENT PERFECT

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 2,482,864 miles of mail trips were scheduled on the government-operated routes and 2,359,161 miles were actually flown with mail, showing a percentage performance of 95.

Fatalities during the year numbered only one and crashes, 15.

Air mail rates have been reduced to 10 cents a half ounce, which covers the average letter. Letters under air mail stamp travel by airplane where they are available and by rail elsewhere.

JOHN D. ENJOYS POLICE CHASE

By Universal Service.

MATAWAN, N. J., Sept. 1.—Imagine the surprise of Patrolman Leroy Sproul of Matawan when he discovered that the expensive car he had commandeered to chase a fugitive motorist was John D. Rockefeller's.

The patrolman signaled a car. He wanted to chase another car that had run by the traffic sign.

The big machine he signaled stopped and Sproul hopped on the running board and directed the chauffeur to give chase to an auto just disappearing around a curve.

Sproul casually looked in the tonneau and was startled to recognize the old gentleman riding there as the aged oil king. There was a gleam in the Rockefeller eye, the feverish gleam of a small boy enjoying forbidden fruit.

"Go right after him," Rockefeller remarked, undoubtedly having a good time.

And when the culprit car had been overtaken and its driver reprimanded, Sproul thanked Rockefeller and found five new dimes in his hand.

WIRE TAPPING CASE APPEALED

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The legality of wire tapping by dry agents, much denounced in the last Congress, has been put up to the United States Supreme Court.

An appeal was filed by Roy Olmstead and eight others from their conviction in the State of Washington on liquor charges. They fought the introduction of evidence against them alleged to have been obtained by agents by tapping telephone wires.

Their conviction was sustained in the Court of Appeals, but the court divided. Justice Rudkin affirmed that wire tapping, if sanctioned by the courts, would "subject the citizens to the most drastic and odious system of espionage imaginable."

WANTS TEMPTATION KEPT OUT OF MAILS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Legislation to prohibit sending money or valuables through the mails in an ordinary letter was urged by E. E. Rudding, president of the Prisoners' Relief Society. Such a law would remove temptation from the susceptible and provide additional revenues to the government in registered mail, Rudding told Postmaster General New. More than 1,000 men have been sent to prison for taking money out of letters, Rudding added.

BOY MURDERED FOR $70,000 INSURANCE

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—Three men were locked up in Brooklyn police headquarters on charges of homicide in connection with the death of Benjamin Goldstein, 20.

The trio, whose arrest followed the disclosure of an alleged murder plot to secure $70,000 insurance, are Joseph Lefkowitz, 42; Harry Greenberg, 35, and Irving Rubinzahl, 24.

The arrest followed the alleged confession of Greenberg to the police after the latter became suspicious his son's supposed accidental death by drowning was in reality murder.

According to police, Rubinzahl admitted pushing Goldstein overboard from a rowboat. Lefkowitz denies implication in the alleged crime. He is the beneficiary of the $70,000 insurance policies.

According to stories Greenberg and Rubinzahl told the police, the two were to receive $1,000 for playing their roles in disposing of Goldstein. Rubinzahl was also to receive the victim's automobile, he said.

Goldstein was drowned last Thursday when he fell, supposedly by accident, from a rowboat off Coney Island. With Goldstein in the boat were Rubinzahl and Greenberg.

TWO SHOT, ONE DEAD IN OHIO MINE WAR

AMBUSH TRAIN HAULING COAL

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 1. [illegible] A number of bullets coming from an ambush along the right-of-way early this morning caused the engineer, A. J. Meyer, fireman and brakeman of an Ohio freight train carrying bituminous coal from Benwood, W. Va.

The train consisted of three sections, separated by minutes apart. Meyer was killed, on the first section several shots were fired at the caboose as it went past the ambush. The train stopped at the switch in Lafferty to notify authorities of the shooting. As the second section drew up alongside the ambush the gunmen again opened fire.

Approximately 25 shots were fired into the two trains from a 30-30 army rifle. When authorities arrived they found three empty shells at a point east of the Meyster coal mine. A guard was immediately placed over the car and a call sent to New Martinsville, W. Va., for bloodhounds.

The mine car was about 60 car lengths from the place where Meyer was shot on.

Two men were seen on the railway tracks and pursued by deputy sheriffs, one of the men, Mike Cassidy, 22, Powhattan, was shot through the leg.

A. W. O. L. IN CAR, BOYS NABBED

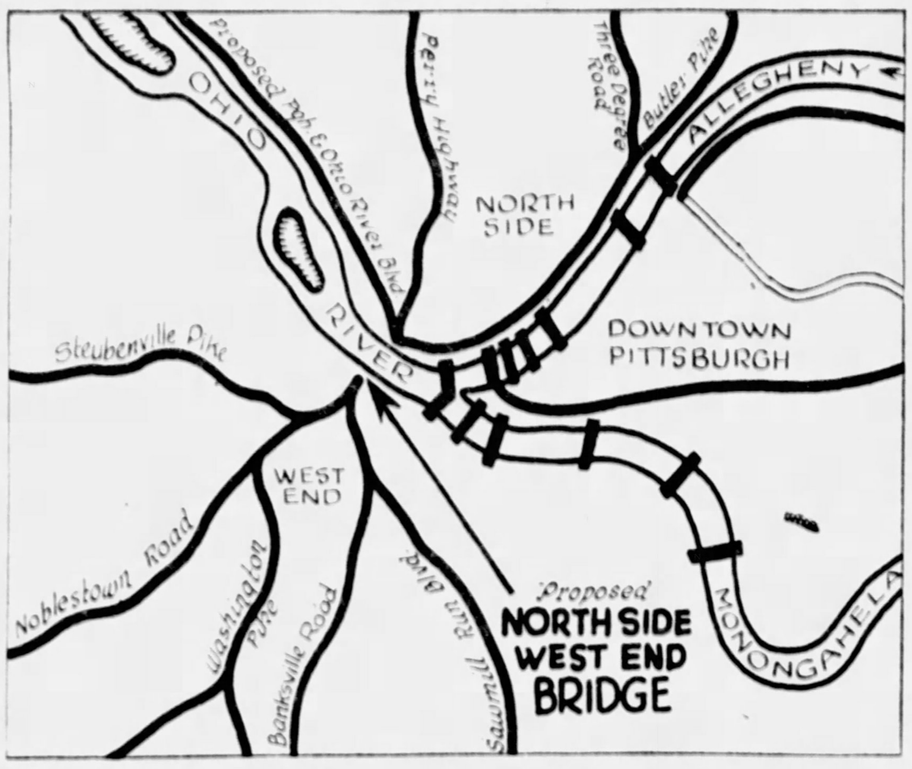
Five Pittsburgh youths touring the country in a rented automobile were arrested in Cleveland yesterday and are being held there until Constable Chris Wanner, of Justice of the Peace James A. Hermon's office, Sharpsburg, can arrive to bring them back home. He has a warrant charging larceny, sworn out by the representative of an automobile renting company.

The youths held, according to word received by Justice of the Peace Hermon are Glen Morris, 132 Forty-third street; Dominic Marr, Almond way; Joseph Delaney, Shawsheen street; Ben Cherry, 605 Hatfield street, and Regie Hughes, 180 Bertha street.

WOMAN KILLED BY TRAIN

The body of a woman who was struck and killed by a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train in McKeesport early today was identified by neighbors as that of Mary Porky, 61, of 824 Ridge avenue, McKeesport. A letter in her purse which also contained seven pennies and a bag of candy led to the identification.

WANT WEST END-NORTH SIDE SPAN



ALSO SEEK CHARTIERS LINK

A span to connect the North Side with the West End was advocated before the West End Board of Trade last night. The Ferry Street Bridge and Tunnel Association also presented its plan for a new connecting link with the Chartiers Valley territory. How the bridge would provide an artery between the North Side and thoroughfares debouching from West Carson street is shown in the diagram above.

URGE WEST END, NORTH SIDE BRIDGE

Civic organizations and business men throughout the city are urging the erection of a proposed North Side-West End bridge over the Ohio River from Saw Mill Run to the vicinity of Belmont street, pointing out the benefits to the traffic congestion problem in the downtown district which would result. Among recent indorsements are the West End Board of Trade, which last night adopted resolutions urging that the project be included in the next county bond issue; the Oakdale Board of Trade, Carnegie Chamber of Commerce, Sheraden Board of Trade and the Bennerdale Civic Club.

The City Planning Commission also has recommended construction of the span and is considering the project in the relocation and remapping of through arteries of travel in and out of the city. The proposed Pittsburgh and Ohio River boulevard will begin on the North Side end of the span and the proposed Saw Mill Run boulevard comes in on the West End side.

Through traffic over the Lincoln and William Penn highways could be routed through the North Side and West End, diverting the heavy travel from the downtown district, it is pointed out.

For more than 150 years a ferry boat has been operated across the Ohio at the site of the proposed bridge, which is offered as evidence of the need of a span at this point. Smithfield bridges, which necessitates Fraths to the South Hills and downs going through the Golden Triangle, river points now uses the Point or already so overcrowded with vehicles.

Speed, speed, yet more speed—a flying tackle of life, love as vivid as football—high school days, high school ways—here at last is a real story of modern youth from the inside, written by an eighteen year old genius with a gift for making you actually feel the pulse of youth. Robert S. Carr has lived the things he writes about with such gripping power. "Crucible of Youth" is founded on the diary of a high school student—a remarkable revelation of what the boys and girls of today really think, feel, do—a record that throbs with the reckless daring of young blood, impatient of all restraint, determined to live its own life—"Where have you been all night?" demanded his father—make sure of getting this marvelous true-life serial, beginning in October SMART SET.

BIG BOY

A world's title, and a woman's heart—fighter and lover, he smashed his way toward the championship—and then . . . Could he come back? Can the right woman ever undo the damage done by the woman who doesn't care? "Big Boy" throbs with primitive appeal, a great elemental story in October SMART SET.

NO PARALYSIS RESTRICTION IN TRAIN TRAVEL

While motorists from Pittsburgh and other points in Pennsylvania and the East who are traveling with children 15 years of age or under are being held up at the West Virginia state line by West Virginia state police enforcing a quarantine against infantile paralysis, railroad travel is not restricted in that district, it was stated today by officials of the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio railroads. C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, after an interchange of telegrams with West Virginia health authorities, issued a warning that Pittsburgh motorists with children would be turned back at the state border, unless they can prove that they are going beyond the quarantined area.

Hunt Honeymooning Jailbreakers Here

Dayton police are searching here for a pair of honeymooning jailbreakers. At least they believe Catherine Moody, 20, of Pittsburgh, and Ray R. Miller, 25, of Dayton, who both disappeared yesterday through a hole sawed in the Dayton jail roof eloped and possibly headed for Pittsburgh.

Both were prisoners and became acquainted during frequent visits Miller made to Miss Moody's cell as a prison "trusty" who had free run of the jail. He made use of his privileges to climb to an attic, cut a hole in a roof and lead Miss Moody to freedom.

Reynolds was awaiting grand jury action on charges of burglary and larceny. Miss Reynolds was being held in connection with the use of an assumed name in making charge purchases from a Dayton store.

She had been living with relatives in Dayton, but her father lives in Pittsburgh. When she left jail she was wearing a green dress and is described as weighing about 125 pounds, having light bobbed hair and light complexion.

"VOTE FOR ME," TEACHERS TOLD

Local politicians have just discovered that a gathering of 2,400 teachers of the rural and suburban public schools is a prolific field for electioneering. At today's session of the Allegheny County Teachers' Institute in Memorial Hall candidates appeared and made unctuous and energetic efforts to get the pedagogic vote.

The candidates had a good time and surprise was expressed that political workers had not thought before of the idea to make a canvass of the country teachers. A canvass made last year among the teachers in a selected list of the rural schools showed that 97 per cent of the teachers vote and are punctual in taking the advantages of citizenship. The survey showed that the majority of the teachers are independent in exercising their franchise, and the questions they flung at candidates today indicated that they think for themselves.

A large body of directors from the boroughs and townships attended the afternoon session when educational questions were informally discussed by schoolmen and laymen alike. Dr. Karl Barnes, of New Hartford, Conn., talked on "Russia's New Educational Experiments."

The speaker said that many important ideas may be learned from Russia and cautioned his hearers that the educator or statesman who gives heed to Russia's experiments is not to be considered a Communist, declaring that much practical good may be evolved from the Soviet theories. While divorce is not considered "easy" in Russia, he pointed out that while there had been one divorce in 27 marriages in Russia last year, the proportion in Illinois was one divorce in seven marriages.

At the morning session Dr. Barnes spoke on "The New British Empire."

"And you are not necessarily afflicted with Anglophobia if you are able to see something good in the British government," he said. "Where the British flag is unfurled, there you find the secure establishment of law and order. You may not relish the process, but you will find yourself under the protection of the law, just the same."

The following committees of teachers were appointed: Resolutions, E. L. Shepherd, M. G. Moran and Miss Elizabeth Miller; necrology, R. Miller Boggs, Mrs. Anna Fraser and Miss Zoe S. Howe; nominations for auditors, J. E. Clark, H. S. Roberts and N. G. Parke. The institute will close at noon tomorrow.

BELLEVUE YOUTH GETS RAILROAD SCHOLARSHIP

Gilbert Morgan Reddy, of Bellevue, has been awarded a Frank Thomson memorial scholarship of $400 for a technical education, by the Pennsylvania railroad. The scholarships were created 20 years ago by sons and daughters of the late Frank Thomson, former president of the railroad, to give the sons of living or deceased employes of the railroad opportunity to secure education along technical lines. Lorise Schofield Atkinson, of Lansdowne, Pa., also was awarded a scholarship.

HE SAYS WIFE RAN AROUND

"She ran around too much," declared Albert F. Irwin of 7800 Kelly street, in filing suit for a divorce against his wife, Ruth B. Irwin of Wilkinsburg, whom he charges with infidelity.

Mrs. Irwin, however, denies that she "ran around," asserting that she left her husband two and a half years ago because she found she cared more for someone else. The wife is just as anxious for the divorce as her husband, and she will not contest Irwin's suit. They were married June 29, 1917.

Alaskan Shipwreck Turned Into Picnic

WRANGELL, Alaska, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The aftermath of a shipwreck was turned into a picnic today as 270 tourists from the coastwise Canadian steamer Princess Charlotte, rescued when the vessel struck a reef near here Tuesday night, plunged into a program of social events here while awaiting the arrival of a relief ship to take them to Vancouver.

The beleaguered excursionists, many wealthy residents of the United States and Canada, were landed in Wrangell late yesterday and immediately were afforded the conviviality for which the Alaskans have become famed. The first thought of the Wrangell townsfolk was a public dance and reception for the refugees.

Aboard private tugs and government vessels which sped through the night in answer to S O S calls from the crippled Princess Charlotte, the tourists invaded Wrangell apparently unconcerned over the prospect of spending two days or more as guests of the Alaskans.

HUNDREDS SWELL LIST OF VISITING VETERANS

END SEARCH FOR DOLE FLIERS

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—The navy's search for the missing transpacific fliers of the Dole race, six men and one girl, has virtually been completed, it was said at the navy today.

Rear Admiral John A. McDonald, commandant at Honolulu, made a report to the Navy today that offered little or no hope that the few remaining moves will produce any but negative results.

The R-type submarines and mine sweepers which have been combing the waters adjacent to the Hawaiian Islands have completed their work, Admiral McDonald reported.

may have been slowed down by stiff head winds or that they may have been forced to "zigzag" in their course.

Had the 62-year-old princess and her two companions veered to the south of their plotted course, they would have struck a rather dense area of wireless and shipping, but, had they swerved to the north, they may have been carried over the bleak northern coast of Newfoundland and the mountainous hinterland, where facilities for communication are such that it would require a considerable period before news that they had been sighted had penetrated to the outer world.

The Canadian government, meanwhile, stood prepared to go to the assistance of the aviators should they be found to be beleaguered anywhere on this side of the ocean. Exactly what the character of this assistance would be will depend upon the cond'tion of the time.

It was computed at 5 o'clock this afternoon that the St. Raphael might still have sufficient gas in her tanks for seven hours' flying.

By International News Service.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 1.—A thick fog prevailed over the Atlantic off the Newfoundland coast today, placing a dangerous obstacle in the way of the British plane, St. Raphael, which is en route for Canada from England, with Capt. Leslie Hamilton, Lieut. Col. Frederick F. Minchin and the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim aboard.

Shortly before noon the visibility was very poor, and a cold northeast wind had been blowing since dawn. This wind, however, was favorable for the fliers.

The steamship Silvia, which arrived at mid-morning, reported no trace of the plane.

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP).—Inquiry at the air ministry at 11 a. m. London time (6 a. m. Pittsburgh time) brought the statement that nothing had been heard of the monoplane St. Raphael since around midnight (7 p. m. Pittsburgh daylight time) when an unofficial message, believed to have come from some steamship reported the plane going strong. The position was not stated.

The air official added that they hoped to have some news pretty soon.

HAS PRINCESS -:- FALLEN INTO FATE -:- OF MISS DORAN?

FIRST

Miss Mildred Doran, Michigan school teacher, the first woman to go on a transoceanic flight, unheard from since she soared out over the Pacific Ocean in the Miss Doran in the Dole race to Hawaii.

AT SEA

Lieut. Col. F. F. Minchin (left) and Capt. Leslie Hamilton, English aviators, flying with the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, backer of the flight, from Upavon, England, to America. They proposed to fly to Ottawa, but are hours overdue and have not been sighted flying over land. One meager message, from an unidentified source, reported the St. Raphael flying strong after it had been in the air 13 hours.

DARING

The daring princess, who decided to make the flight at the first transatlantic woman passenger at the last minute. She is aged 62, widow of a German prince killed during the Spanish-American War while fighting for Spain. The princess has been a flying enthusiast since 1914 and is a pilot herself. Silence, now, hides her fate, possibly similar to that which has befallen Miss Doran.

COUNCILMAN'S CAR IN CRASH

Four persons were injured when a truck collided with a machine driven by Councilman James E. Quinlan of Hays, at Sarah and South Twenty-second streets, at 11 o'clock today.

The injured are Mrs. Elizabeth Felix, 28, of 217 Baldwin street, Hays; two children, Dolores, 4, and James, 6, and Rudolph Knox, 3, of 659 Baldwin street, all of whom were in the car with Councilman Quinlan. Mrs. Felix and the children were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and Knox was taken home.

Quinlan and Walter Watson, 42, a Negro, of 2448 Wadsworth street, driver of the truck, were arrested.

FLYING SERVICE SEEKS CHARTER

HARRISBURG, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The Public Service Commission today received its first application for the incorporation of a flying service. The applicant was the Gettysburg Flying Service, which proposed to carry passengers between Gettysburg and Washington and on sight-seeing trips over the famous battlefield.

Later the company plans to give a state-wide service, carrying passengers and freight, and with landing fields at Harrisburg, York, Gettysburg, Williamsport, Scranton, Sunbury, Wilkes-Barre, Chambersburg, Bloomsburg and Bellefonte.

Sore Tooth Delays Cronkhite's Arrival At 80th Reunion

An abscessed tooth kept Major General Adelbert Cronkhite from the opening session of the Eighteenth Division Veterans' reunion last night. He wired William I. Fleming, general chairman, that he expects to get here before the fete ends.

The boys expect him. Today they told of him, whom shrapnel and gas were causing havoc at Nantillois. "Cronkie" developed a severe affliction of sore feet. One morning he came out sans shoes, and raised "cain" because a new bridge wasn't finished.

"Don't mind this blankety-blank, (censored) shell-fire," he said on that occasion. A big shell exploded near him.

"Confound these feet," he remarked nonchalantly. "let's go ahead boys."

They went.

DIPLOMAT, GIRL BROKE ON LARK HE'S JAILED

By Universal Service.

DENVER, Col., Sept. 1.—Romulo Rosales, who claims he is a member of the Nicaraguan diplomatic corps in Washington, was lodged in jail here facing charges of having violated the Mann act.

He and Miss Elizabeth Morton Hales, 17, alleged to have been companions on a trip from Washington to this city, were arrested when the girl sought employment as a waitress.

Confronting her story to authorities, in which she said that she had pawned her jewelry, Rosales said:

"In my country a girl wouldn't ask for work to help a fellow out. Nor would she sell her jewels to locate an embarrassing situation."

and when he paused, husky with emotion, the rafters shook with the applause.

He turned finally to those on the stage beside him. "These are my boys," he said, and could go no further. Then he sat down.

SPEECHES

The meeting in Moose Temple last night was the first formal gathering of the veterans in their tenth annual reunion. There were formal speeches from Councilman James F. Malone, representing Mayor Charles H. Kline; T. F. Gaynord, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and William L. Fleming, general chairman of the convention. Capt. Carlo D. Cella, president of the association, and Gen. Brett responded.

Today the convention gets down to business with a series of committee meetings. At 10 o'clock from buses left the Temple for the H. J. Heinz plant filled principally with wives of delegates. After lunch there they were scheduled to go, with hundreds of delegates, for a boat ride down the Ohio River.

The official banquet of the reunion will be held tonight in the Fort Pitt Hotel, after which a dance will be staged in the Moose Temple Auditorium.

PAWNED WATCH THEFT CLUE

As he reclaimed a watch left in pawn in a Wylie avenue loan office, James Lonetti, 25, Evergreen road, was arrested by city detectives today in connection with a jewelry robbery in Rochester.

Last July a window in the Nere & Allen jewelry store, Rochester, was broken and $1,800 worth of jewelry stolen. The watch which Lonetti claimed today is said to be part of the loot.

ASPHALT PLANTS LACK FUNDS

Unless additional funds are provided by Council, the city's asphalt plants, employing 225 men, will close October 1, 60 days earlier than was anticipated. The plants received an appropriation of $400,000 for this year and approximately $50,000 additional is needed if the plants are to complete the work scheduled. This information is contained in a report transmitted to Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang by Assistant Superintendent T. L. Pillow, of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers. The report lists 41 streets that have been resurfaced, including 22 not placed on the regular schedule but substituted because of the urgent need for improvement.

CLEANERS-DYERS AT WAR HERE; TRIO HELD

The cleaners' and dyers' war broke out into the open today when three leaders of the Wholesale Cleaners and Dyers' Association of Western Pennsylvania were held for court on charges of conspiracy by Magistrate George H. England in Central Police Court.

They were I. J. Roth, 6357 Graham place; Louis B. Cohen, 5436 Callowhill street, and Jack Dunn, 325 Melwood street.

They were prosecuted by independent cleaners, who complained that a combine was in force against them and that they were forced to sell their custom to Shrago.

Harry Feddiman of the Liberty Cleaning Company testified that when he refused to join the wholesalers' group, Diamond threatened him with, "All right, we'll do the same here that we did in Chicago."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Broadcasthumorously ruffled over publication of the story that a taxicab driver was hired to double for him in a scene which required a horseback ride, Will Rogers, erstwhile Oklahoma cowboy, explained today that his recent operation prevented him from going through with that part of the motion picture he is working on here.

LINK AUTO THIEVES WITH GANG MURDER

A web of evidence entangling them in the gang murder of James La Rosa on Sunday is being woven by police about Joseph Hyrnyak, 21, John Dalla, 24, and George Palla, 20, arrested in Detroit with a stolen Pittsburgh automobile.

The automobile, owned by Dr. D. H. Donaldson, 5414 Howe street, was stolen in front of Mercy Hospital, two squares from the scene of the crime, about the hour at which La Rosa was slain.

The prisoners, according to word from Detroit, admit the theft of the car, but refuse to waive extradition. They deny the murder.

La Rosa, or "Jimmy the Boss," was picked off as he entered his home, rear 1358 Fifth avenue, by gangsters hidden in the Rod and Gun club-rooms. Detectives, at first believing one man responsible, found evidence that three men had been in the club. Then came the news of the auto theft by three men and the detectives began connecting the theft with the murder. The arrest of the three in Detroit followed.

TWO SHOT, ONE DEAD IN OHIO MINE WAR

AMBUSH TRAIN HAULING COAL

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 1.—A volley of shots coming from an ambush along the right of way early this morning caused the death of A. J. Meister, driver of a locomotive and other freight train hauling bituminous coal from Bellaire, W. Va.

The train consisted of three sections about 15 minutes apart. Meister was fireman on the first section, several shots were fired at the caboose as it went past the ambush. The train stopped at the switch of Lafferty to notify authorities of the shooting. As the second section drew up alongside the ambush the gunmen again opened fire.

Approximately 25 shots were fired into the two trains from a 30-30 army rifle. When authorities arrived they found three empty shells in a mile car at the Meister coal mine. A guard was immediately placed over the car and a call sent to New Martinsville, W. Va., for bloodhounds.

The mine car was about 50 car lengths from the place where Meister was fired on.

Two men were seen on the railway tracks and pursued by deputy sheriffs. One of the men, Miles Cordeno, of Powhattan, was shot through the leg.

A. W. O. L. IN CAR, BOYS NABBED

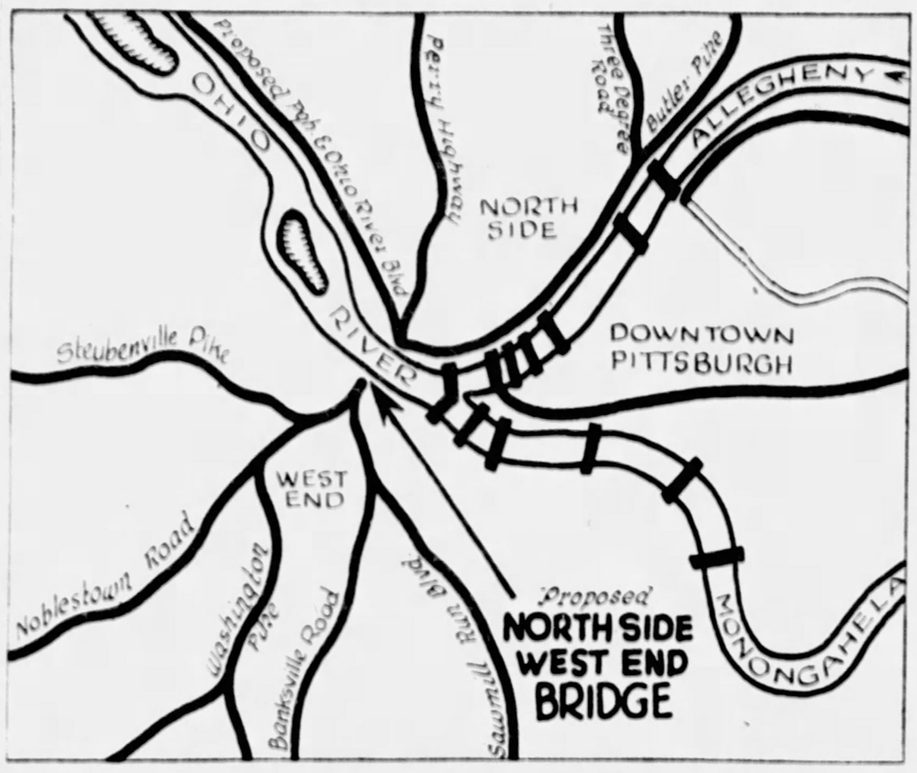
Five Pittsburgh youths touring the country in a rented automobile were arrested in Cleveland yesterday and are being held there until Constable Chris Wanner, of Justice of the Peace James A. Hermon's office, Sharpsburg, can arrive to bring them back home. He has a warrant charging larceny, sworn out by the representative of an automobile renting company.

The youths held, according to word received by Justice of the Peace Hermon, are Glen Morris, 137 Forty-third street; Dominic Marr, Almond way; Joseph Delaney, Stockholm street; Ben Cserri, 4405 Hatfield street, and Regis Hughes, 166 Bertha street.

WOMAN KILLED BY TRAIN

The body of a woman who was struck and killed by a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train in McKeesport early today was identified by neighbors as that of Mary Purky, 61, of 924 Ridge avenue, McKeesport. A letter in her purse which also contained seven pennies and a bag of candy led to the identification.

WANT WEST END-NORTH SIDE SPAN



ALSO SEEK CHARTIERS LINK

A span to connect the North Side with the West End was advocated before the West End Board of Trade last night. The Ferry Street Bridge and Tunnel Association also presented its plan for a new connecting link with the Chartiers Valley territory. How the bridge would provide an artery between the North Side and thoroughfares debouching from West Carson street is shown in the diagram above.

URGE WEST END, NORTH SIDE BRIDGE

Civic organizations and business men throughout the city are urging the erection of a proposed North Side-West End bridge over the Ohio River from Saw Mill Run to the vicinity of Belmont street, pointing out the benefits to the traffic congestion problem in the downtown district which would result. Among recent indorsements are the West End Board of Trade, which last night adopted resolutions urging that the project be included in the next county bond issue; the Oakdale Board of Trade, Carnegie Chamber of Commerce, Sheraden Board of Trade and the Remerdale City Club.

The City Planning Commission also has recommended construction of the span and is considering the project in the relocation and remapping of through arteries of travel in and out of the city. The proposed Pittsburgh and Ohio River boulevard will begin on the North Side end of the span and the proposed Saw Mill Run boulevard comes in on the West End side.

Through traffic over the Lincoln and William Penn highways could be routed through the North Side and West End, diverting the heavy travel from the downtown district, it is pointed out.

For more than 150 years a ferry boat has been operated across the Ohio at the site of the proposed bridge, which is offered as evidence of the need of a span at this point. Traffic to the South Hills and down-river points now uses the Point or Smithfield bridges, which necessitates going through the Golden Triangle, already overcrowded with vehicles.

NO PARALYSIS RESTRICTION IN TRAIN TRAVEL

While motorists from Pittsburgh and other points in Pennsylvania and the East who are traveling with children 15 years of age or under are being held up at the West Virginia state line by West Virginia state police enforcing a quarantine against infantile paralysis, railroad travel is not restricted in that district, it was stated today by officials of the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio railroads. C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, after an interchange of telegrams with West Virginia health authorities, issued a warning that Pittsburgh motorists with children would be turned back at the state border, unless they can prove that they are going beyond the quarantined area.

Hunt Honeymooning Jailbreakers Here

Dayton police are searching here for a pair of honeymooning jailbreakers. At least they believe Catherine Moody, 20, of Pittsburgh, and Ray R. Miller, 25, of Dayton, who both disappeared yesterday through a hole sawed in the Dayton jail roof eloped and possibly headed for Pittsburgh.

Both were prisoners and became acquainted during frequent visits Miller made to Miss Moody's cell as a prison "trusty" who had free run of the jail. He made use of his privileges to climb to an attic, cut a hole in a roof and lead Miss Moody to freedom.

Reynolds was awaiting grand jury action on charges of burglary and larceny. Miss Reynolds was being held in connection with the use of an assumed name in making charge purchases from a Dayton store.

She had been living with relatives in Dayton, but her father lives in Pittsburgh. When she left jail she was wearing a green dress and is described as weighing about 125 pounds, having light bobbed hair and light complexion.

"VOTE FOR ME," TEACHERS TOLD

Local politicians have just discovered that a gathering of 2,400 teachers of the rural and suburban public schools is a prolific field for electioneering. At today's session of the Allegheny County Teachers' Institute in Memorial Hall candidates appeared and made unctuous and energetic efforts to get the pedagogic vote.

The candidates had a good time and surprise was expressed that political workers had not thought before of the idea to make a canvass of the country teachers. A canvass made last year among the teachers in a selected list of the rural schools showed that 91 per cent of the teachers vote and are punctual in taking the advantages of citizenship. The survey showed that the majority of the teachers are independent in exercising their franchise, and the questions they flung at candidates today indicated that they think for themselves.

A large body of directors from the boroughs and townships attended the afternoon session when educational questions were informally discussed by schoolmen and laymen alike. Dr. Earl Barnes, of New Hartford, Conn., talked on "Russia's New Educational Experiments."

The speaker said that many important ideas may be learned from Russia and cautioned his hearers that the educator or statesman who gives heed to Russia's experiments is not to be considered a Communist, declaring that much practical good may be evolved from the Soviet theories. While divorce is not considered "easy" in Russia, he pointed out that while there had been one divorce in 27 marriages in Russia last year, the proportion in Illinois was one divorce in seven marriages.

At the morning session Dr. Barnes spoke on "The New British Empire."

"And you are not necessarily afflicted with Anglophobia if you are able to see something good in the British government," he said. "Where the British flag is unfurled, there you find the secure establishment of law and order. You may not relish the process, but you will find yourself under the protection of the law, just the same."

The following committees of teachers were appointed: Resolutions, E. L. Shepherd, M. G. Moran and Miss Elizabeth Miller; necrology, R. Miller Boggs, Mrs. Anna Frazer and Miss Zoe S. Howe; nominations for auditors, J. E. Clark, H. S. Roberts and N. G. Parke. The institute will close at noon tomorrow.

BELLEVUE YOUTH GETS RAILROAD SCHOLARSHIP

Gilbert Morgan Roddy, of Bellevue, has been awarded a Frank Thomson memorial scholarship of $800 for a technical education, by the Pennsylvania railroad. The scholarships were created 20 years ago by sons and daughters of the late Frank Thomson, former president of the railroad, to give the sons of living or deceased employes of the railroad opportunity to secure education along technical lines. Lucien Schofield Atkinson, of Lansdowne, Pa., also was awarded a scholarship.

HE SAYS WIFE RAN AROUND

"She ran around too much," declared Albert F. Irwin of 760 Kelly street, in filing suit for a divorce against his wife, Ruth B. Irwin of Wilkinsburg, whom he charges with infidelity.

Mrs. Irwin, however, denies that she "ran around," asserting that she left her husband two and a half years ago because she found she cared more for someone else. The wife is just as anxious for the divorce as her husband, and she will not contest Irwin's suit. They were married June 29, 1917.

Alaskan Shipwreck Turned Into Picnic

WRANGELL, Alaska, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The aftermath of a shipwreck was turned into a picnic today as 270 tourists from the coastwise Canadian steamer Princess Charlotte, rescued when the vessel struck a reef near here Tuesday night, plunged into a program of social events here while awaiting the arrival of a relief ship to take them to Vancouver.

The beleaguered excursionists, many wealthy residents of the United States and Canada, were landed in Wrangell late yesterday and immediately were afforded the hospitality for which the Alaskans have become famed. The first thought of the Wrangell townsfolk was a public dance and reception for the refugees.

Aboard private tugs and government vessels which sped through the night in answer to S O S calls from the crippled Princess Charlotte, the tourists invaded Wrangell apparently unconcerned over the prospect of spending two days or more as guests of the Alaskans.

Millie Moves Into "Beau's" Room; She Asks John Nye To Sunday Night Meal

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

SSALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family which consists of MRS. JEROME; the twins, BEAU and MILLIE; and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY downtown afternoons. In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman who wants her to marry him and keep on working. But the only man in whom she is interested is JOHN NYE whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's in the Nye-Naylor building. Nye hires Millie as his secretary when Sally refuses the job. He becomes blindly infatuated with her; and Sally is heartsick and jealous. Beau and Mabel spend most of their money on themselves, and rarely give Sally anything. Beau suddenly blossoms out with so many new clothes and other luxuries that Sally becomes suspicious. The crisis comes when Ted Sloan, angry with Sally because of her coldness towards him, tells her that Beau got more than $100 from him by means of two bad checks. Sally, terrified lest Ted turn Beau over to the police, borrows $100 from Mr. Peevey. She gives it to Beau to pay Ted. But instead of giving Ted the money, Beau uses it to elope with his girl, MABEL WILMOT.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"THEY can't come here," she murmured, more to herself than to her sharp-eyed, sharp-tongued aunt.

It was not because of the extra work that they couldn't come, she told herself. She would do that willingly.

It was because of the extra expense their coming would mean.

Sally knew that she never would be able to pay for the meals, the laundry, the thousand and one little extras for Beau and his bride. With the load of Beau's debts on her shoulders, she was going to have hard enough sledding as it was, for a long time.

"Aunt Em," she said again, and this time she said it more firmly, "I just can't have Beau and Mabel here——"

"How are you going to keep them away?" asked Aunt Emily, who had a way of hitting the nail on the head, even when she asked a question.

Sally had no answer for her.

Long after Aunt Emily had vanished, with Mrs. Jerome clinging to her arm, Sally pondered that question . . . How could she keep Beau and Mabel from coming to the flat to live?

It was Millie who finally answered it for her, when she carried her coffee into the bedroom.

"Here's your breakfast," she said, setting the tray with its snowy napkin and its steaming coffee pot down on the side of her bed. "What's today's news?" She began to look through the newspaper, standing there by the sunny window.

Outside the sky was blue and the air was full of the first tang of autumn. From the yard below came the cheerful whistle of Ted Sloan as he washed his car, muddy from last night's storm.

"Well, there's nothing in the paper about Beau's elopement," laughed Millie, dropping three lumps of sugar into her coffee and adding a half cupful of cream. "Maybe they didn't get married, after all—although Beau's been carrying a marriage license around with him for a week."

"Has he?" asked Sally, surprised. She never was in on Beau's affairs the way his twin was.

Millie nodded, smacking her lips daintily over the coffee.

"Ye weekum! But that coffee's good!" she fluted; "I sure do wish we were rich enough to have cream every day instead of just on Sunday!"

"We could if we had a little more money," sighed Sally, her thoughtful eyes on the sky outside the window. How the whole world revolved around money!

She swung around suddenly, and faced her sister.

"Millie, what are we going to do about Beau and Mabel?" she asked, her bright face drawn with worry.

Millie laughed again. Her laugh was a light-hearted happy sound, as gay as the purring of a brook against pebbles. Millie's worries were few and far between. So long as there was cream for her coffee, hats and high-heeled slippers and knee-high dresses to adorn her little body, a man to go down on his knees to her and lay gifts at her feet, life was good—so far as she was concerned.

It was perfect.

"What are we going to do about Beau and Mabel?" she repeated airly. "Why give them the cheapest wedding present we can find, of course; and do it up with white-satin ribbon and silver-paper so it will look like something grand!—At least that's what I'M going to do, believe you me!" her words ended in another shower of laughter.

"No, no, I didn't mean that," said Sally gravely. "Aunt Emily says they'll surely come here to live—and, Millie, we just can't take care of them. You know, Beau hardly ever gives us any money for the house, not even when Mabel's here."

"That's perfectly true," agreed Millie, suddenly sober.

"And now that Beau's given that worthless check to Ted Sloan, I'm not going to have as much money as usual. For that's got to be taken care of whether anything else gets paid or not." Sally went on, thinking out loud.

"I thought there were two checks," began Beau's twin, but Sally cut her short with a brisk shake of her head. She never, never, was going to let anyone—not even Millie — know about that other check. The one that Beau had raised from $10 to a hundred and ten.

"Besides that, I think Beau ought to have a home of his own right from the start — a place to put his money into," she said seriously and gently. "I think it would be a great mistake for him to bring Mabel here at all."

"Me too!" Millie spoke quickly and excitedly now. "It would be just terrible to have them here! —Why every time I had a man here to see me, they'd be sitting right there in the living-room all evening!—Why, it would be just too awful—No, they can't come here if I have to tell them so, myself!"

Her little blonde face darkened as she spoke.

For Millie always had insisted upon having the living room all to herself on the evenings when men came to call upon her. She drew the curtains then, and shut the rest of the family out.

"No, I'll not have those two living here!" she declared again, and Sally could tell, from the set of her chin, that she meant business. "I'll move all my clothes and things right into Mr. Beau's room right now, this very morning, so there won't be any place for them if they DO come!"

"Oh, we might keep them for

'Buddies' Give Comfort To Gold Star Mothers

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

"We all love our country. Most of us would die for it gladly if we thought it would be of any benefit. But a mother who has given her own flesh and blood in the form of a son has surely made the Supreme Sacrifice."

That is the tribute an unknown buck private of the Eightieth made yesterday as he sat watching the Gold Star mothers doing their bit in welcoming the boys.

There were four of them, dear gray haired mothers, looking for the boys who had fought beside their own loved ones—hanging on their every word, asking them questions so that they might be a little more certain about the fate of their own. They find consolation from those "buddies," these mothers who gave their life blood when they sent their sons to "The Big Parade."

GIVES LAD OF 16.

Mrs. Margaret English, of 1623 Sedgwick street, North Side, is one of the dearest of them all. She gave her boy to the service of his country when he was 16. George Dewey went to Mexico. Three years later—and she hadn't seen him in all that time, he went Over There.

On July 30 he was killed at Soissons. George was with Co. H, 18th Infantry. Another son, Cyril, of Co. I, 30th, came back to comfort his mother, unharmed.

There was a mother there who gave her son on the first day the boys went into action in the Argonne, September 26, 1917.

She is Mrs. Mary Sullivan, of 921 Greenfield avenue. Her boy was James J., of the Thirty-seventh Division. With tears runing down her cheeks she told of how shrapnel ended his life, and cried:

"Oh, it is hard to go on."

Mrs. John Diller, 152 Olympia street, Mt. Washington, told proudly that the Henry Oscar Diller Post No. 69, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Mt. Washington, is a tribute to her boy. He was aged 22 when killed at Chateau Thierry, June 25, 1917. The first Washington Heights lad to die for his country in the World War.

KILLS FATHER, TOO.

"My husband died of a broken heart. He was as much a victim of the war as my boy," Mrs. Margaret Finn, of 146 Plymouth street, Mt. Washington, said brokenly. "My son was Joseph Patrick Finn, of Co. C, 320th Infantry. From the time of his death in the Argonne my husband was like a dead man."

They are carrying on, trying to smile, loving their country just a little better because they have given so much to it. Theirs is a cross that The Maker alone understands. But theirs is a glory that shames the greatest hero in the hearts of their countrymen.

3-Year-Old Lindbergh Admirer Makes Two Mile Non-Stop Dash

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Glen Nebel, 3, and his little red coaster wagon, which he calls "We," is resting at his home after an arduous two-mile-long stretch of city streets in less than three hours.

While frantic parents and authorities searched for the baby who "took off" from his home in an effort to emulate the achievement of his hero, Colonel Lindbergh, Glen ended his initial "flight" in the back yard of a home two miles away.

"'We' are hot and hungry," he told Mrs. Allan McFarland, into whose yard he had strayed.

Mrs. McFarland fed the human half of "We" and later turned the baby over to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nebel. The mother fears her son will attempt another non-stop flight if she doesn't keep an eye on him.

DRY OFFICER HELD FOR SHOOTING WOMAN

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 1.—J. Bruce Lambert, prohibition enforcement officer, of Elkins, charged with shooting Mrs. Nellie Brotemarkle, of Flintstone, was held for court at a preliminary hearing last night. Lambert is said to have shot the woman when she appeared with a gun after he had arrested her husband. She is in the Allegheny Hospital here.

FLIERS ESCAPE IN PLANE DROP HERE

Lieut. "Jack" Morris, flying instructor at Rodgers Field, and J. A. Dennis, athletic coach at Oliver High School, narrowly escaped death or serious injury yesterday when a plane in which they were flying fell about 50 feet to the grounds of Shady Side Academy, Fox Chapel road.

Lieut. Morris managed to right the plane just before the crash and he landed without serious damage. The fall occurred when the motor stalled when the plane was about 400 feet over the academy grounds. Dennis is a student of Lieut. Morris.

BUILDING MAKES GAIN HERE

Building in Pittsburgh registered a sharp gain in valuation during August, according to the report of M. J. Hooper, chief clerk of the Bureau of Building Inspection. There were 616 permits granted during the month for work valued at $5,662,745, contrasted with 727 permits valued at $4,556,070 in the same month last year.

The volume of building declined, but large construction operations were responsible for the higher values. The William Penn Hotel addition, a $2,500,000 project, was the largest job. The Fourteenth ward was again first in home construction, the Twenty-seventh ward was second and the Nineteenth ward third.

DUMP CAR BURNS AT DUQUESNE

The fire departments of Duquesne and of the Duquesne works of the Carnegie Steel Company were summoned early this morning when fire was discovered in a dump car on a siding in the steel plant. The fire was confined to the car in which it originated and was extinguished with a loss estimated at $50.

Not a Bad War After All, Veterans Decide

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

Well, you see it was just like this. It probably isn't exactly on the level to go around gabbing all these little things when they were told by a bunch of Eightieth fellows in strictest confidence—but—

Jim Hill, a local florist, wasn't so "swell" when it came to handling the French language as he bragged that he was. Jim was with the Three Hundredth and Fifth Field Signal Batallion. He went all over a whole village one night with his laundry, pounding on doors and looking for anything from a Chinese to a washing machine to do it for him.

When he got back to his outfit, poor Jim was so exhausted all he said as he sank to his bunk was:

He Washees Himself

"Not heap darn fool compree washee, washee?"

And the poor boy had to do it himself.

"Madame avenue two bunks for kat soldats," didn't get another report linguist very far one night either. It was Benny Goldberger, also a Pittsburgher, who promised John Higgins, now a patrolman here and Howard Schuster, an auto salesman, that if they just came along with him he would get them bunked for the night in feathers and night caps.

But they finally went to sleep standing up after a night of banging on doors and hearing a re-echo of banging windows. Maybe it doesn't sound so funny to anyone who wasn't over there. But at the Moose Temple the laughter drowned out the band.

One time the bunch were on their way from the British front to St. Mihiel sector, Revey-sur Ource, and after walking 24 miles—from dawn to dusk they saw a train of box cars pulling in ahead of them, just as they neared the old goal. It was learned that the lieutenant had read the orders wrong and the train had been sent for them. No one told what became of the lieutenant.

He's No Fireman

Higgins says he really did burn those two trucks—accidentally, some of, at Grand Pre. "The Fighting Parson" twitted him about it, and he says:

"Oh, I mighta been able to put 'em out. But I'm no fireman."

Dr. H. W. Wade, of St. Petersburg, was in on the yarn swapping. His contribution was not so funny, however. The doctor was in charge of the first aid headquarters at Nantallois. He tells of one time when a shell struck the station and killed and wounded six. There is a glint in his eye when he tells it and admits it was no accident.

But the Parson speaks up and reminds in his quiet southern way:

"Well, Doc, we were pretty well armed ourselves. There were machine guns firing all around us."

Dr. Wade's funniest one is about that "Y" man who thought he was gassed and it took two soldiers to put his mask on. The next day he asked if they didn't think he would be of greater use where it was a little more quiet.

The boys were laying for Forrest E. Peters of Harrisonburg, Va. One of those pesky buglers! Anyway, that's what his comrades say—and they hope he won't feel hurt, but he was the biggest nuisance in Company E, Three Hundred and Eighteenth Infantry!

They sort of eased up on their razzing for awhile. Forrest was trapped on the hill at Nantallois on the morning of October 4, plugged with shrapnel and lay helpless and unaided eight hours. He didn't annoy them any more for almost five months. Forrest is a jeweler now.

Four "lucky stiffs" enjoyed bragging about how near they came to getting it and didn't even get a scratch. They were, Thomas Gray, Company B., 319th, Infantry; John J. Gibson, Company K., 318th and M. E. Burken of the same outfit. All are from Central City, Pa. But Lewis B. Dollard, Company A., 305th Engineers, of Windber got in on the gab fest and told a couple just as good.

"Luckiest Guy" of All

Charles E. Gerber was hailed as one of the "luckiest guys" of all. He was plugged on the end of the finger while taking three wounded men back from a skirmish. Charles is a B. & O. machinist helper now. He was with Company D, Three Hundred and Fifth Engineers.

That one he told about Halloween at Immecourt wasn't so bad. The time the funny noise started outside the pup tent and he and another fellow thought someone was playing a Halloween prank. When they saw a big hole suddenly appear in the tent however, they remembered they were not back home cussing the neighbor kids for keeping them awake.

Pretty good war—sometimes, though.

BOOST REWARD AFTER CHILD IS HURT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 1.—Rewards totaling $1,500 have been offered by the Valley Camp Coal Company officials for the arrest of those responsible for three dynamite blasts at the Kinloch mine, the last of which yesterday wrecked a miner's home and injured one of his children.

Two thousand dollars is offered for the apprehension of those who dynamited the house yesterday and last Friday blew up a transformer of the West Penn Power Company. Another thousand is offered for the men who blew up a mine fan on July 15.

VARE, WILSON TO ATTEND QUIZ

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Senator-elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania and his defeated Democratic opponent, William B. Wilson, will be present at the special meeting of the Senate campaign funds investigating committee at Chicago September 7, they informed Senator James A. Reed, Missouri, chairman of the committee, today.

The calling of the meeting to discuss preservation of ballots in the contested Pennsylvania election, which may be destroyed after the third Tuesday in September, was announced here yesterday. Senator Watson of Indiana, acting chairman of the Senate committee on privileges and elections, informed Senator Reed in a telegram from Rochester, Minn., that he was calling that committee to meet at the same time and place, as requested by Senator Reed.

M'KINNEY SAFE STUMPS YEGGS

A set of safe breaking tools was ruined by daylight robbers who broke into the home of William S. McKinney, 1812 Wightman street, vice-president of the McKinney Manufacturing Company. The safe, believed to contain much jewelry and other valuables, had been rolled to the center of the room and bore signs of being battered and hammered and beside it were chips from burglar tools, but the safe was not opened.

Mr. McKinney has been away from home since August 1. A maid said the house had been ransacked, but that she did not believe anything of great value had been stolen.

HOLLIDAYS COVE, W. Va., Sept. 1.—By a vote of 52 to 12, residents approved a $25,000 bond issue for street improvements.

Rogers Finds Capital Unchanged--Poker -ssh--Drinking

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Just finished taking scenes here in Washington for a movie of the old stage play, Hoyt's "A Texas Steer." It was the story of a man elected to Washington on bought votes. We are bringing it up to date by not changing it at all. In the stage version he didn't know what to do when he got in Congress. That part was allowed to remain as it was. He used to play poker more than legislate. That's left in. There was a little drinking among the members at that time. For correct detail in our modern version that has been allowed to remain in.

Dorothy Dix Says:

"BOYS OF TODAY ARE CONCEITED BECAUSE YOU GIRLS MAKE THEM SO; ANYTHING IN TROUSERS GOES."

A [illegible] girl asks: What are the boys of today coming to?

Well, my dear, it is hardly a matter of one. Every mother's son has to look with the selfish love that exactly his right to lay at the [illegible] of the universe, and each of the well, and vainly hope and expect everything feminine to give them the superiority complex in the shape of [illegible].

By the time a man is 40 he has had so many females at his feet that he is of egotism [illegible] and walks softly and [illegible]. But the young man has had nothing happen to him to shake that [illegible] opinion of himself. He is very afraid that his stuff and it takes a little of the stiffness off him.

Mainly, however, it is because the boys are conceited because the girls make them so by flattering to their vanity.

You girl [illegible] and admire them when they [illegible] at their feet and generally treat them as if they were little tin gods, and that would [illegible] the head of any human being. It is not surprising that boys think more highly of themselves than they should. It's amazing they would be at all if they didn't have their heads swelled by the adulation that you girls [illegible] upon them.

Consider the situation. No two [illegible] with personality see [illegible] differently just as the members of your own sex and the members of the other sex. For a girl to have any outing with other girls she must have some charm of manner and person. She must have some education. She must dress neatly. She must be courteous and pleasant and she must behave herself with discretion.

But just anything in trousers goes with girls. A boy may be loutish. He may be ignorant. He may be rude and offensive in his manners. He may be dull and stupid. He may get [illegible] drunk. But even so, with all his faults thick upon him, girls are flattered to death to receive attention from him.

EVERY day I see pretty, dainty, refined girls out with boys who are so dirty and slovenly in their dress and so uncouth in their conduct that there is almost as great a contrast between them as there was between Titania and the Beast. When girls will go out with any kind of man, can you wonder that it makes a boy feel superior and patronizing to them?

Then look at the way girls run after boys. They don't wait for the boys to come to see them, they chase the boys down. They don't wait for the boys to take the initiative and make the dates, they hound boys over the telephone, demanding to know why they don't come to see them, and when they are coming, and if they can't come tonight, won't they come tomorrow night and what do they say to going to the movies, and so on. Nine times out of ten it is the girl who calls up the boy, not the boy the girl. The boys don't have to.

FURTHERMORE, girls are so grateful to a boy who will go out with them that they will buy the tickets to the place of amusement or get the invitation to the party and come for them in their automobiles. You can't blame a boy for feeling that he is some sheik when he makes that much of a hit with the janes, can you?

Then girls will let a boy break a date without any excuse and get away with it without even an apology. They will open up a correspondence with a boy and write three or four times to his once and will answer a picture postcard with a twelve-page letter telling him how they adore him. When they quarrel the girls are invariably the ones who weaken first and make up.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

IF YOU CAN'T BE BEAUTIFUL, BE DUMB.

When asked what it was about his most beautiful showgirl that attracted him, a famous theatrical producer answered "Nothing!"

Well, isn't that exactly what it is about most women that attracts a man? Just nothing!

HELEN ROWLAND

Nothing is so alluring, so irresistible, to a man, in any woman as nothingness!

Nothing at all inside—and nothing much outside!

Nothing to get on his nerves—and nothing to distract his attention from his work. Nothing to bore him—and nothing to excite him.

Nothing to make him THINK after a hard day at the office—and nothing to take his attention off his newspaper at breakfast.

Nothing for him to live up to or look up to—and nothing to make him ashamed or apologetic when he falls below his own ideals and standards.

Why didn't the Lord make all women sweet and insipid—beautiful and dumb for their own sakes as well as for man's?

A woman who is full of pep and originality and ideas and opinions and efficiency may be the life of a dinner party and a fascinating pal to play around with. Every man may admire her—from a distance—just as he admires a fireworks display or a vaudeville contortionist.

But what he wants to come home to, every evening, after a strenuous day downtown, is something as soothing and quiet and unobtrusive as a shady mill-pond on a warm sunny afternoon.

He may look for viracity, sparkle and mental stimulation in the women he meets abroad; but what he looks for in the woman who meets him at the front door is PLACIDITY, serenity and pliability. Before marriage his pulse may beat to a jazz-tune; but after marriage he longs for a lullaby.

That's why so many happy wives remind one of those flat felts that can be bent, shaped and molded to fit the head—and the imagination.

Be beautiful, sweet maid, but, if you can't be beautiful, be DUMB!

Remember that nothing is so attractive in a woman as—just "NOTHING!"

Quicksands of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Hears Herself Accused by Dicky and Demands an Explanation.

I AM NOT one of the women who tremble and faint at the sight of a yellow envelope. Telegrams are rather a commonplace in my life. But the sight of one addressed to Dicky which Katie had just brought me gave me a distinct qualm.

Katie eyed the thing anxiously when she had transferred it from her hands to mine. A telegram is always mysteriously terrifying to her.

"You no goin' upon it?" she asked, for while Dicky and I never open each other's letters, telegrams are common property in the household and are opened by the one who first receives the message.

"No, it is Mr. Graham's," I said a bit stiffly. "He will be in presently."

She returned with a tone of the kind that said unutterable things about my indifference. But when she had gone I stared at the yellow envelope, fascinated, for it presented a real dilemma to me.

With the memory of the hauteur which Dicky's face had held when he looked at me, I would no more have opened the telegram addressed to him than have read a note to him marked "Strictly Personal." Yet I knew that he ought to have it as soon as possible, and I was by no means certain that my remark concerning his coming home presently was justified. He was far more apt to stay away until almost midnight, as he did the preceding evening.

Aside from telephoning him, at hearing Edith Fairfax's voice over the wire and being compelled to explain my errand to her, as might very well happen were Dicky away from the office. But there was nothing else for me to do, except—Suddenly I found myself feverishly putting on my hat and cloak with a determination that seemed to come from somewhere outside my own volition—to go to Dicky's office and deliver the telegram to him in person. I knew that his hatred of a scene would keep him from treating me with anything other than courtesy, and I felt a queer little boyish conviction that somewhere in my expedition I might find a key to the problem of my husband's odd behavior.

With an explanatory word to Katie, I hurried out and took the subway to the corner nearest the office of the art magazine in which Dicky had sunk so much money in order to save some of his friends, notably Lillian, who had invested in the thing because of his advice. That he recovered part of his investment was due, I knew, to the ability and hard work of Edith Fairfax, who no doubt was even now in the office with him, for, as heads of the magazine, responsible for its development, they frequently worked long after their subordinates had gone.

When I finally reached the building it was to find an apparently deserted floor on which the magazine offices were situated. The office people had gone, the scrub women had not yet come on duty. But from Dicky's office, always dark at this time of day, because the magazine was not yet prosperous enough for much light or space, there came a little gleam of light, and I surmised that he, at least, was there.

With my heart pounding against my side as if it were a racing motor, I walked to the door of my husband's office with very much the feeling of going to execution. But almost as I put out my hand to knock upon the door I heard Dicky's voice in an unmistakable groan:

"Oh, Edie, Edie!" he said, but I hardly would have known the harsh, ragged tones. "This is killing me. How could she?"

My hand fell upon the doorknob as if it suddenly had become paralyzed. Indeed, for a second or two I was incapable of speech or motion. I opened my mouth to call out and let them know I was outside, but no sound came. I tried to turn and go away, but my feet refused to carry me. Then I heard Edith Fairfax's soft tones.

"Would it make it easier for you if you told me?" she asked.

Dicky's reply was prompt.

"Yes, it would, but not even to you, Edie, though God knows what I would do without you, can I breathe the horrible truth. She is my boy's mother, you know, and, though I never can bear to look at her again, yet she has a certain—"

With a galvanic jerking of myself back to action, I pushed the door open violently.

"She has nothing," I cried, "claims nothing except the right to an explanation of the vague, horrible accusation you have just made."

The Truth

By ELINOR GLYN.

About Parents.

I WANT to write today about the awful selfishness of some parents. This is demonstrated by the way they allow their offspring to bore and annoy others, permitting them to affect the comfort of whole groups of people on trains and in restaurants with never a correction or even a request to the poor little spoiled creatures to be quiet.

The Browns pay for their tickets of transport, or their bill in the hotel, but that does not give them the right to impinge upon the comfort of the Jones (who also paid for theirs) by allowing their children to disturb them. The Browns would justly resent the Robinsons tapping and scratching things, passing their chairs as they passed, or shouting with squeaking voices and disturbing their rest. But because it is the Browns' own children who do all these things, that is perfectly all right! The poor Joneses and Robinsons must put up with it!

It is not the fault of the children—the selfishness of their conduct has never been explained to them.

All children should be taught good manners and courtesy, firstly from the point of view that it is mean to impinge upon others who have the same rights as yourself; and secondly that both these things, courtesy and good manners, will bring huge rewards later on, in friends and attracting good-will. The true lady or gentleman is never inconsiderate to others—is never rude or uncouth or loud voiced.

Why not give your children the chance to become refined?

Who suffers most from marriage — woman or man ?

IN TWENTY-FIVE YEARS Louise Rice, the famous handwriting expert, has analyzed the characters of a million human beings.

"Who write me pages about their moral struggles, their passionate yearning for they know not what?" she asks in September Pictorial Review. "Who mourns that life is drab? Who suffers most from marriage . . . ?"

The answer will surprise you. Men and women both should read this article. It helps men understand themselves. It shows women how to manage men. Best of all, it provokes lively discussion.

What do you think, yourself? You'll find Miss Rice's article and a dozen other features as fascinating—in September Pictorial Review.

Are women losing their charm?

Modern economic life has ruined romance, laments Corinne Lowe. "That measuring eye, that cash-register voice, that material outlook that afflict so many women in business—are they necessary? Why cannot modern independence be combined with a little of the grace that once was woman's?" A jolly article to read aloud—you will enjoy it in the September Pictorial Review.

Can jealousy be cured?

"Uncontrollable jealousy should be grounds for divorce," argues Dr. Joseph Collins. "Divorce should be compulsory, as when one partner is a chronic lunatic." Dr. Collins speaks from personal observation, from years of practice. What should the jealous person do who wants to be cured? Read his illuminating answer in this outstanding number—September Pictorial Review.

Kathleen Norris on the fun of being a mother

A wonderful article by this loved author. And there's a photograph of her with her own son and a dozen other children she has mothered. "The wisest mothers," says Mrs. Norris, "never punish at all. Children can grow through babyhood without quarreling, without being troublesome in any way. Your children are what you make them . . ." How? She tells you—in the September Pictorial Review.

How to reduce – without wrinkles

Heaven help the family whose women are reducing! Doris Lee Ashley tells how to be fashionably thin without sacrifice of beauty, health or happy disposition.

Other September features, 3 serials, 7 stories by Cameron Rogers, Joseph C. Lincoln, Bessie Beatty, Clarence Buddington Kelland, Mateel Howe Farnham, Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, Gerald Mygatt.

My colored clothes wash brighter

—this safe, "no scrub" way

IT'S wonderful to watch everything come out so fresh and clean. I never knew colored things could get so bright and new-looking. And I don't even touch a washboard.

I just soak the wash in rich Rinso suds. Dirt and stains float off by themselves. Clothes get whiter and brighter than I could scrub them.

Rinso is a granulated laundry soap, and it's all I need on washday. No bars, chips or harsh chemicals. I like it because it makes our water so wonderfully sudsy.

So easy on my hands! They don't get a bit red or washworn. Ask your grocer for

Sally's Shoulders

ENGROSSING DIFFERENT LIVELY DRAMATIC

By BEATRICE BURTON

Millie Moves Into "Beau's" Room; She Asks John Nye To Sunday Night Meal

two or three days until they find a place of their own," said Sally, "that looks so cruel, Millie. Turning Beau out of his own room—"

"They can go and live in Mabel's old boarding house!" broke in Millie stubbornly. "That's the place for them until they get a flat or something. We may just as well let them know that they can't sponge on us!—They'll be here for meals most of the time anyway, you can just bet!"

As Sally picked up the coffee tray and started down the hall with it, she called her back.

She was leaning back against her pillows, her face radiant, her eyes shining, and her hair catching the light in the sun-flooded room.

"Sally," she said in her delicious drawl, "Speaking of weddings and love affairs, I've asked John Nye to supper tonight. He's been wanting to meet mother for a long time, so I asked him up for tonight—Fix up something fussy and get some flowers for the table. Ted's mother will give you some of her asters if you ask her for them—Will you? And make your chocolate cake with the white icing."

"But mother won't be here to meet him if she stays out at Aunt Emily's to go to church with her," Sally reminded her.

"I hope she does stay!" Millie replied pertly, "I hope she doesn't come home. She'll talk a lung out of him if she's here, telling him about her headaches, and how her feet go to sleep, and how cucumbers give her heart-burn!—I'd like to have him to myself tonight. I may as well tell you frankly, with a little encouragement, I think he'd ask me to be Mrs. John Nye, darling."

Sally could only stare at her, dumb with hurt and jealousy.

"So if you'll straighten up the living-room, and put some flowers in it if Old Lady Sloan will give you some," Millie's voice ran on, "I'll be very grateful to you—And then after supper, you just beat it, and let me have my sweetie to myself, will you?"

Sally nodded. To save her life she could not have said a word in answer just then. Her heart seemed to have come up into her throat, suffocating her, choking her.

"Hello, anybody home?" she heard Ted Sloan calling from the back porch as she started out to the kitchen.

She set down the coffee tray and unhooked the screen door, letting him in. He smiled down at her, gripping his pipe between his teeth. His hands were in his pockets and she wondered if the checks were in one of them, too.

Curiously enough, he did not mention them now. "Be nice to me," he said, coming close to her, "will you—just because it's Sunday?"

She nodded. "I will if you'll do two things for me," she answered him, and she managed to smile back at him although she never had felt less like it in her life, "Come to supper tonight, and take me to a movie afterward?

CHAPTER XXII.

IT was not Sally Jerome's way to run away from things that were unpleasant.

True enough, she might long to run from them—thousands of miles away from them.

But she faced them, anyhow.

For so young and gay and tender a creature, she had a marvelous courage. A courage worthy of a strong man instead of a little girl of 20.

And so this morning, when she faced Ted Sloan in the kitchen, her head was held high, her chin was up, and there was a smile in the corners of her mouth.

"Don't think that you're being asked to a wedding supper!" She flung the words at him cheerfully.

"We haven't heard a word from Beau and Mabel. We don't even know whether they managed to rout out some minister or other to marry them, last night."

She smiled again as she filled the tea kettle for her dishes. But Ted, perhaps because he cared for her as he never was to care for another woman so long as there was breath in his body, saw that there was no laughter in the blue eyes. A man always watches a woman's eyes when he is in love with her.

"Then why bother to ask me to supper?" he wanted to know, draping his body over the back of a kitchen chair. "Wouldn't you rather go for a drive with me and pick up a hamburger and a cup of coffee somewhere?"

Sally shook her head. "No, I don't want you to spend money on me for a long, long time," she said soberly, rinsing out the coffee cups with cold water. "Beau must have forgotten to give you that hundred I lent him last night. So I'll just let him keep it for a wedding present and I'll make good that check of his, too. Only you'll have to give me some time on it. I can give you a couple of dollars at least every week."

She figured that she could.

Now that Beau was gone, the household expenses would not be nearly so heavy as they had been. Beau could eat a pound of meat at a meal, and his laundry bills were terrible.

"See?" she asked, looking up at Ted from the coffee-cake that she was wrapping in a clean tea towel.

He laughed shortly. "Oh, sure, I see perfectly," he told her grimly.

"Beau just pocketed that money that you gave him and walked off with it—and you're going to let him get away with it, and pay all his debts for him besides . . . Well, this is one debt you won't have to pay!"

While she watched him with wide eyes, he took the two checks out of his trouser pocket and tore them into bits. He came over to the sink and dropped the torn bits into the wastebasket under it.

Then, with another quick movement, he locked his arms around her and lowered his face to hers.

He was going to kiss her, too. But suddenly she was away from him—out of his hands like water. And he was left standing beside the sink and feeling very foolish. His face was flushed with shame and defeat.

"I tore up the checks," he reminded her sullenly.

Sally nodded. "Yes, and I'll pay you back the money even if you did," she said quickly. "But not that way, Teddy. I'll pay it back the way I said I would—two dollars a week!"

She saw that he was angry, and she went to him and laid one hand on his arm. "You did a fine thing just then, Ted, and I was horrid to you," she said quietly. "But I just couldn't help it—I don't want—I don't want—"

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

EXPECTANT MOTHERS NEED BEST OF CARE.

THIS article is being written on a Pullman car. It is a hot, trying day. Across the aisle from my seat is a young couple, traveling with a beautiful child about two years of age. My doctor eyes tell me another sweet little life is on the way. Within a short time another journey will be begun.

DR. COPELAND

Young mothers have a better chance today than they had 50 years ago. Scientific care has lessened the danger of child-birth. Thank God for that.

Doctors have learned that exercise, out-of-door life, and recreation are good for the prospective mother. Nowadays she is encouraged to go about her affairs and not to make herself a voluntary prisoner during the long days and weeks.

We are not so prudish as we used to be. The maternity period is no longer a shameful one. Women do not hide themselves from sight. They are not ashamed to be seen working on the trousseau for the expected visitor. They freely talk with their friends about the coming event.

Why not? What is more natural, more praiseworthy? Of what in all the world could one be more proud?

The greatest gift God can give any woman is the privilege of motherhood. She should glory in it.

Whenever I think in terms of this subject I am impressed by what we owe the expectant mother. This little woman across the aisle has the care of one youngster, hardly more than an infant still. She must look after this baby and yet guard her health and welfare for the sake of the coming one.

It is not unusual to have a whole house filled with little folks. It is unfair to this mother, no matter how unselfish and uncomplaining she is, to leave her unassisted in her daily tasks. It is the manifest duty of husband, relatives and friends to give all the unobtrusive aid possible.

I rejoice to see the solicitude and intelligent assistance of the young husband across the aisle. He is as useful as a well-trained nursemaid—and I can pay him no higher compliment.

A young woman in this physical state has much to learn about foods. She cannot select those things which appeal to her particular appetite. The question before her all the time is—what will this do to me and to my child?

It is not uncommon for a pregnant woman to have her teeth decay with remarkable speed. This is because the growing body near her heart has need of food minerals to build its bones and framework. The mother must supply the needs of the babe, as well as her own needs. This means that far more than her usual mineral supply must be taken. Milk and vegetables and fruits—all the foods carrying lime and other salts must be taken in quantities.

The mother must exercise to keep her muscles hard and flexible. Pretty soon, special demands will be made upon some of these muscles and they must be ready for the task.

The body wastes must be carried away and they cannot be unless lots of water is taken. Not only at meal times, but between meals there should be an abundance of drinking water.

The nervous system must be kept in trim by plenty of sleep and rest. Reading and agreeable entertainment quiet the nerves and promote the happiness and peace of mind. Calmness of spirit is half the battle.

Best of luck to you, dear mothers!

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

W. D. Q.—Would it be possible for the blood to be too thick, causing the circulation to be impaired? Will milk and eggs increase the blood supply?

2.—If the system were toned up would varicose veins become smaller?

3.—What makes the saliva flow too quickly? It runs out during the night while I am asleep.

4.—Quite frequently I have sore spots on the head and a tight, nervous feeling accompanying this trouble. What would you advise?

A.—It might in advanced age. Milk and eggs will help the system in general and, therefore, benefit the blood supply. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—Not necessarily. Bandaging and keeping off the feet should be helpful for this trouble.

3.—Probably due to acidity. Watch the diet, avoiding too many sweets, and be sure to avoid constipation. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

4.—Without examination I cannot advise you.

Horoscope

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 2.

Except in the early hours of this day, benefic aspects rule, according to astrology, which finds conditions good for most human interests.

Women now come under a sway making for their welfare in love and business.

While the planetary government indicates that there will be a period when femininity is stressed, there is a promising outlook for success in many public activities.

This is an auspicious sway for love affairs and is read as foreshadowing much susceptibility on the part of men.

Women will be much courted and admired at this time, which is an auspicious one for marriage engagements.

Even though it is Friday, this should be a lucky wedding day, in which lives will begin a harmonizing and progressive process.

Engineers should benefit greatly, for there is a forecast of much demand for bridge-building and increase public projects.

Diet should continue to be a subject of first importance, for astrologers foretell increased numbers of cases of appendicitis.

Interest in spiritualism is to flare up again, it is prophesied, and a new leader will attract wide attention.

Children born on this day probably will be artistic in nature, but compelled to apply their talents to practical pursuits.

Two Gish Girls Fight To Restore Their Mother's Health; Dorothy Not To Return To English Studio

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.

THE [illegible] Lillian and Dorothy, will devote all their energies [illegible] months to bringing their mother, Mrs. Mary [illegible] health. Both girls feel they owe much of their success [illegible] mother, who was their advisor, their companion and [illegible] in the early days. For that reason Dorothy has abandoned [illegible] of returning to England.

Instead, she is now considering an offer to play the leading role in "A Little Bit Here Seen Kelly," a Universal comedy drama, now under [illegible] direction. If Dorothy agrees to sign the contract, she will play [illegible] Irish trailer, while Tom Moore will remain true to his [illegible] and endeavor to give a correct imitation of Kelly.

Lillian [illegible] mother's [illegible] the word West Point in the title, [illegible] and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer not to [illegible] outcome in the matter of court [illegible] has promised not to release their picture until after the De Mille picture is shown. William Boyd and Renee Lorie have the leading roles in the De Mille picture, while William Haines and Joan Crawford capture starring honors in the M-G-M army drama.

Patsy Ruth Miller wasn't a China maid's choice [illegible] in New York now. I saw her the night before I left Hollywood and she told me when she finishes "Stars and Forever" for Tiffany she is expecting that she might come to New York for a vacation. But you know what Bobby Burns said about the best laid plans of mice and men, the same is true of Patsy Ruth. She has agreed to play the feminine lead in "Red Riders of Canada" for F. B. O. as soon as she finishes "Stars and Forever." This "Red Riders of Canada" sounds mighty like a western. It is based on a magazine story "Pirates of Muskeg" by William Byron Mowery. Pat plays a trader's daughter who becomes interested in a sergeant of the northwest mounted police. The westerns get these players sooner or later, no use trying to dodge them. Personally, as long as they are popular I do not see why the stars turn up their noses at western dramas.

A little success is sometimes dangerous. Here we have Lawrence Grey, good-looking young actor chafing at the bit and demanding his release from Paramount Famous players. Only a few brief months ago Larry Grey was doing his best to break into the movies on the coast. Young Grey states that having failed to obtain suitable roles he wants his release. He apparently obtained it, for now he is to play opposite Virginia Valli in "Ladies Must Dress," a Fox picture. This is his second Fox picture, having been borrowed from Paramount for "Pajamas," opposite Olive Borden a few months ago.

Hollywood adores a fight. I heard on all sides just before I left California that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Cecil De Mille were going to stage a battle on the right of supremacy for the West Point picture, which both are producing. Yesterday official information reached me that Will Hays had settled the argument by an effective compromise. Cecil De Mille has agreed not to use the word West Point in the title, and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer not to release its picture until after the De Mille picture is shown. William Boyd and Renee Lorie have the leading roles in the De Mille picture, while William Haines and Joan Crawford capture starring honors in the M-G-M army drama.

WAR VETERANS GET TREAT

Every wounded veteran of the World War who presents proper certificate from the government showing he is disabled, will be admitted free to Loew's Aldine on Friday to see "The Big Parade." They will be guests of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery and Loew's theater. They are asked to appear at the box office not later than 7 o'clock. A representative of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Artillery will examine the certificates. "The Big Parade" will have its last showing in the Aldine Saturday night.

The seat sale opens today in the Nixon for George White's new musical comedy "Manhattan Mary," starring Ed Wynn and featuring Elizabeth Hines, with a big cast.

The Alvin, spic and span with new dressings and refurnishing, is ready to open its season Monday afternoon, Labor Day. The attraction will be Clark and McCullough in "The Ramblers," which comes from New York as a laughing musical success of long-run stamina.

The story of "Three Wise Fools," next week's offering in the Pitt, is built around three old bachelors who live together. A bequest from a woman whom they have all loved in their youth changes the whole course of their lives. Thurston Hall and Anne Forrest will lead the company.

"Is Zat So" the screen version of the sparkling comedy, comes to the Davis next week. Ned Wayburn's "Variety Show," featuring the Four Ortons and Al and Fanny Stedman, has been booked for the Kieth-Albee bill.

Harry Jolson, brother of Al, will headline the vaudeville in the Harris next week in an offering of blackface, comedy and song. The screen feature will be "Colleen," with Madge Bellamy, a drama of the race tracks.

"Around the World Revue" comes next week to the Gayety. Howard Blair, Hal Kennedy and Roy Butler are featured.

Kitty Madison, who heads the cast in "Jazztime Revue," in the Academy next week has been a featured player on the Mutual wheel several seasons.

Vaudeville in the Sheridan Square in the first three days of next week will be topped by Eddie Hodges and Company in a musical revue. "Is Zat So," from the stage success, will be shown on the screen.

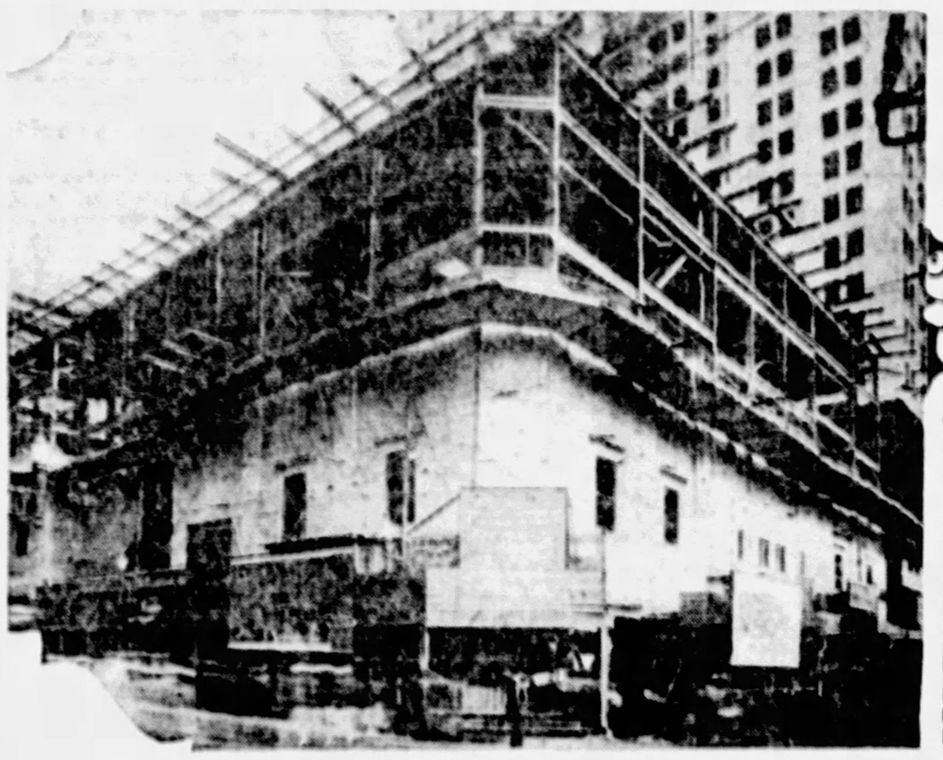
"Camille," with Norma Talmadge, is to show at the Grand and Liberty next week. It is the modern version of the classic romance by Dumas.

Starring Tom Meighan, "We're All Gamblers" will be shown in the Olympic next week. Marietta Millner plays opposite the star.

FIELDS AND CONKLIN IN "THE SIDE SHOW"

Percy Heath of the Paramount studio writers' staff, has completed "The Side Show," an original story to be used in the first Paramount co-starring comedy of W. C. Fields and Chester Conklin. Fields will be shown as owner of a small and shady show while Conklin will be a village sheriff. Heath's most recent scenario for Paramount was "Tell It to Sweeney," a railroad comedy featuring Conklin and George Bancroft.

Brick by Brick, Upward :-: Old Master Shows' Em How



GOES THE STANLEY, new Stanley-Davis-Clark theater, Penn avenue and Seventh street. When it is completed Pittsburgh will have another wonderful theater—another "last word" in structure and equipment for entertainment purposes.

GEORGE M. COHAN personally conducting a rehearsal of his new show, "The Merry Malones." Not only are his feet busy, but he has his arms quite usefully employed, too, if you ask us for our opinion about the matter.

Cullen Landis to Play In Cruze Film, "On to Reno"

Cullen Landis, who first achieved screen success under the direction of James Cruze in "The Fighting Coward," is again to appear in a Cruze production, having been selected to play opposite Marie Prevost in "On to Reno."

This picture, which will mark the debut of Cruze as an associate producer with Cecil B. DeMille, is being filmed at the Metropolitan studio, where Cruze has established his new production organization. Landis has recently completed a featured role in "We're All Gamblers," one of the last pictures Cruze directed for Paramount-Famous-Lasky before terminating his contract with that concern.

"On to Reno" is a modern comedy-drama of divorce, written by Joseph Jackson, and is being scenarized under the supervision of Walter Woods.

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH SIGNS TULLY MARSHALL

David Wark Griffith has signed Tully Marshall to play the role of the Jester in Mr. Griffith's next United Artists picture. The tentative title of that film, "A Romance of Old Spain," has been changed to "Drums of Love." The story by Garrit Lloyd is that of a romance in the Americas below the equator, and the crux of the theme is the dramatic dilemma of two powerful feudal brothers who covet the same captive girl.

KLEMAN INN TO OPEN NEW SEASON TONIGHT

Tonight marks the opening of the fall season at Kleman Inn, East End. Dinners will be served from 5 p. m. until 8:30 daily, with Sundays and holiday service beginning at noon. Music will be provided by Ray Englert and his Kleman Inn Orchestra. This seven-piece orchestra has been engaged for the entire season to entertain through the dinner period and also during the cabaret program which begins at 9:30 p. m. David S. Lewis will assume the management of the Inn for the season.

Film Stars to Vie for Limelight at Big Dempsey Bout

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 1.—Jack Dempsey will have a lot of competition for the limelight when he meets Gene Tunney in Chicago. Hollywood en masse, so it seems, is going to attend that fight. Gloria Swanson will meet her Marquis in Chicago and together they will view the battle. Mary Pickford has already promised Douglas Fairbanks that she will go with him. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is sending a special car. In fact, most of the studios are planning to send a contingent of those who are not working at the time. One Hollywood star will be conspicuous by her absence and that is the wife of Jack Dempsey, Estelle Taylor. Miss Taylor will content herself with hearing the returns over the radio at a nearby hotel.

"THE STREET OF SIN" IS NEW JANNINGS PICTURE

"The Street of Sin" has been settled upon as the title for the new Emil Jannings' picture which went through the production stage under the tentative title of "Hitting for Heaven." The actual filming of the story has been completed. It is the second for Jannings' American-made pictures, and like it predecessor, "The Way of All Flesh," it was produced at the Paramount Studio in Hollywood.

MACK SWAIN RETURNS TO SENNETT COMPANY

Mack Swain, comedy star of the Sennett lot in the olden days, is back once more among the fold. For the past year Swain has been free-lancing in support of the screen's leading dramatic stars, but he now returns to his first love, comedies. Swain will be seen in a leading role in "The Girl From Everywhere," Mack Sennett's recently completed four-reel feature comedy.

Max Reinhardt to Join Ranks of Movie Producers

Max Reinhardt, the Austrian who has done so much for Germany's stage and whose name has been on Morris Gest's praising tongue for years, has jumped into the ring behind his hat, standing up on both feet and shouting to the house. "I'm going to Hollywood to make movies."

Following the capitulation of Gest himself, as well as the advent to films of Dr. Karl Vollmoeller, author of the book of "The Miracle," and of Vladimir Nemirovitch-Dantchenko, co-founder with Constantin Stanislavsky, of the Moscow Art Theater, Reinhardt's accession to United Artists gives that company all three personalities concerned with the stage success of "The Miracle" and other Gest productions.

Reinhardt, the stage producer, has decided views on actors, which he has expressed over his own signature. His authority to speak in the matter is attested by the presence eminence of early Reinhardt troupers like Emil Jannings, Ernst Lubitsch, Conrad Veidt, Werner Krauss, Rudolph Schildkraut and Joseph Schildkraut. Besides, Reinhardt was something of an actor himself.

Screen's Best Dressed Man to Become Shabby Hero

Ernest Vajda's brightness and originality have cost Adolphe Menjou a vacation abroad. Finished with "A Gentleman of Paris," the suave Paramount star was preparing to take a brief trip to Europe when Vajda submitted a new yarn which so intrigued Menjou that he dropped all preparations for his trip and will soon start "Serenade," the Hungarian playwright's latest story.

The story gives Menjou the role of a young composer who marries the inspiration of his greatest success, a love symphony. Fame, comfort and adulation turn the poor young composer's head and lead him to slight the woman who had suffered his earlier trials with him.

"Serenade" will show Menjou as a poor and shabby hero for the first time, and in not even a single sequence will the now-famous evening clothes be donned by the star. Fay Wray will play opposite him.

MUTE SCULPTOR ADDS NEW PRIZE WITH CHISEL

GLACIER PARK, Mont. — John Clark, deaf and dumb Glacier National Park Indian wood sculptor, this year added a prize big horn piece to his long list of Rocky Mountain animal sculpture work. Some of Clark's art creations are on permanent exhibition in the Chicago Art Museum. He chisels his life-like animals out of tree trunks taken from the forests of Glacier Park.

PUPILS GO TO SCHOOL ON GAS FIRM'S PROFITS

Part of the profits of the municipal gas plant of the town of Leigh, in Lancashire, England, will be used during the next four years to provide each year six elementary school scholarships of the value of £10 a year for four years, according to recent decision of the town council. The scholarships are tenable in either the boys' or the girls' grammar school of Leigh.

BUCS AND CUBS BATTLE FOR LEAD TODAY

VICTORY FOR CORSAIRS MEANS FIRST PLACE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

a double threat at the heels of the Pirates and Cubs in the spectre of the Cardinals and Giants. Only two and one-half games separate the fourth-place Giants from the first-place Cubs.

MEADOWS VS. ROOT

A thrilling double victory over the Quakers yesterday gave the Pirate hosts a satisfying feeling as they headed for Pittsburgh. The glow of success was upon the players, even though they did nothing unusual so far as the entire jaunt was concerned. Counting the four hot fights in St. Louis before the Pirates turned eastward, the Bucos engaged in 18 fights, winning 10, losing seven and tieing one.

Manager Donie Bush stated this morning that Lee Meadows would face the Cubs in their last appearance of the season in the Oakland orchard. Manager Joe McCarthy, of the Cubs, appears to have Charlie Root all saved for the Pirates. The Cubs enjoyed an off day yesterday—that is they enjoyed it until they received the late returns from Philadelphia.

CVENGROS SAVES DAY

Although his humble person was in the spotlight for only a short time, little Mike Cvengros was a two-way hero in the double triumph of the Pirates as they finished up their year's work in the Baker Bowl. Mike was called into action in the tenth inning of the first game with the winning marker on third, only one out and Fred Leach at bat. The clever portsider made Leach hit a short fly to Barnhart. Jimmy Wilson stepped up, but Manager Bush halted play to get Carmen Hill on the mound and Carmen, after walking Wilson to fill the sacks, made Fresco Thompson hoist a fly to Barnhart. The battle raged for 13 rounds, the Bucos winning in the thirteenth on a questionable decision at the home plate.

Manager Stuffy McInnis and Second Baseman Fresco Thompson of the Quakers were ordered off the field in a brawl that had the early marks of a free-for-all. Pooch Barnhart scored the winning run as Wright was being thrown out at first. Wrightstone returned the ball to Wilson and there was a big collision at the plate. Umpire Moran's ruling favored the Pirates and the rumpus was on. The battle was stopped for 10 minutes by the arguing. The Phils' pilot and second sacker were lost for the second game, which the Pirates won in regulation frames. The scores were 3 to 2 and 7 to 2. Vic Aldridge blanked the Phils on their trick park in the first eight frames of the opener. Vic saw the foe rush to a deadlock at the eleventh hour. Pirpo was beginning to feel the terrific strain in the tenth and he was taken out in favor of Cvengros with runners on third and first and one out.

John Miljus threw six goose eggs at the home team in the nightcap. Although he finished up the second game of the previous day John looked like a champ until the seventh. He had a three-run margin at this point. The Phils scored twice in the seventh. Sand opened the eighth with a double. Miljus had one ball and one strike on Williams when Bush felt the happy idea of putting Cvengros back. Mike fanned Cy and came out of the game without allowing any more runs. Miljus received credit for the victory, but Mike's pitching had a big part in the success. In the ninth the Pirates jumped on Jack Scott for four runs. Scott started against Miljus and was a puzzle up to the ninth.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS by HAVEY BOYLE

SPORT fans in the East and Middle West, mainly, have an expensive month just ahead. Close to $2,000,000 may be gathered in by Mr. Rickard in Chicago; in New York the international polo contests will collect another half-million, and in the early part of October the baseball citizens will spend a million or so on the world series.

HAVEY BOYLE.

These amounts take in only the money to be spent for admissions to the big affairs. The railroad fares, the hotel bills, and the considerable sum given to hatrack girls to guard carefully the hats of diners, will add a couple of more millions to the bill.

The great expenditure is brought about by a natural desire to see these big events, plus a great flood of expert advertising copy which is written by the newspaper boys.

A PROMINENT publisher said some time ago that the newspapers had made a Frankenstein of sports and then began to worship it. Undoubtedly, greater interest in sports has been promoted unconsciously by the newspapers, but only now and then does Mr. Constant Reader or Old Subscriber write in with a complaint against "too much" sports.

Once a large mid-western newspaper started a movement to cut down on the baseball news. The circulation took quite a flop and before long the newspaper in question was back giving baseball a great play.

A concerted movement by all papers against all professional sports would no doubt diminish the returns from those sports, but the newspapers are not concerned with increase or decrease in sporting receipts. Sensing that the public desires news of the sporting events the newspapers supply this demand.

THE Chicago Cubs, here for a visit with the Pirates, may imagine they have suffered very bad luck recently. Maybe they have. But if they look at their rivals, the Giants, the Pirates and Cardinals, the Cubs will discover that in the matter of luck the Chicago outfit is indebted to the gods of fair fortune.

The Cards have had to stagger along without O'Farrell and Thevenow and had to watch a good pitcher, Bhem, cut capers. The Pirates lost Kremer, found Aldridge from time to time with a bad arm, lost Wright, missed a first-string catcher for a month, aside from some trouble with Cuyler. The Giants found what looked to be a great left side of the infield, Jackson and Lindstrom, out of whack at various times, on top of ailments of main-line hurlers.

In view of this, the Cubs should not be down on their luck. In fact, the Cubs need not be shocked to hear that many of their rivals term them a pretty lucky ball club. They may feel flattered, however, in also learning that all rivals give them great credit for continual hustling, which alone has allowed them to stay in their present prominence.

EMMETT ROCCO KNOCKS OUT ROMERO-ROJAS

YOUNGSTOWN, Sept. 1.—A reputation was blasted and a new one made here last night when Quintin Romero-Rojas of Chile, who has fought some of the best heavyweights in the game, was knocked out in the fifth round by Emmett Rocco, youthful heavy of Ellwood City, Pa. Rocco proved too rugged and too murderous a puncher for Romero, and held the lead all the way, despite the loser's edge in experience.

Joe Shurra, Pittsburgh heavyweight, was knocked out in the first round by Bud Bollender of Youngstown.

INDIAN ENTERS RACE AT BRIDGEVILLE TRACK

William (Whiz) Sloan, the only Indian racing driver extant and who paved the way for other speed notables on the trails of the hazardous track as did his aboriginal ancestors, will be one of the entrants in the 25-mile and 75-mile speed spectacles on the Pittsburgh-Bridgeville board speedway Labor Day afternoon, commencing at 3:30 o'clock, daylight time.

TUNNEY BREAKS CAMP TODAY

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney turned from the quiet of the Adirondack hills today to face in Chicago a final drive to the peak of physical condition and the challenge of the man who lost the heavyweight crown before Gene's flying fists last fall.

Regretfully, the titleholder went about the task of packing his things for the three weeks' training period at the Cedar Crest Country Club on Lake Villa, Ill., that will add the final touch to his preparations for his second battle with Jack Dempsey in the Chicago stadium, September 22. With sparring partners and handlers, Tunney will motor early this evening to Utica to board an express train that is scheduled to land him in Chicago before noon tomorrow.

JACK WORKS ON DEFENSE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Daily workouts at the camp of Jack Dempsey have indicated that the former champion's chief aim now is the development of a defense against left jabs.

former heavyweight titleholder went through a fast round with Jack McCann, the St. Paul heavyweight, yesterday. In the three minutes the two mauled each other. McCann repeatedly slipped through his left to Dempsey's chin and mixed it occasionally with a right cross that had Jack worried. However, Dempsey's infighting kept McCann from doing any real damage and the round ended with matters fairly well even.

In three other rounds with sparring partners yesterday, Dempsey did just about as he pleased and gave the fans a thrill in the first encounter, when he floored Dutch Meisner, a Blue Island brickmaker with a left hook.

MYSTERIOUS SMITH AT POINT OF DEATH

PORTLAND, ORE., Sept. 1.—(AP.—Mysterious) Billy Smith, one-time claimant to the welterweight championship of the world, lies near death out on Demonstration Field.

Mysterious Billy claimed he won the world's championship by defeating Danny Needham in San Francisco, December 14, 1892. Needham was knocked out in the fourteenth round.

Smith eventually lost the "title" to Rube Ferns, who won on a foul in the twenty-first round of a bout in Buffalo.

TOM DAVIES HERE

Tom Davies, former Pitt sports star, now director of athletics at the University of Rochester, is here to spend a few days visiting friends before leaving for Rochester, N. Y., to assume his new duties. Tom is in "mid-season" form, having spent the summer at Chautauqua Lake coaching in a football and baseball school.

DUKE COACH TO BUILD FROM GROUND UP

Layden Says He Often Finds Obscure Material Better Than Boys With Big High School "Reps"—New Ones Have Nothing to "Unlearn"—Development and Selections to Be Slow—Retains Shift.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

(Note—This is the second of a series of interviews with the local college football coaches on their prospects for the season. An interview with Coach Walter Steffen of Carnegie Tech appeared yesterday. Coach Jock Sutherland of Pitt will tell of his prospects in Saturday's issue.)

IT DOESN'T require a very long look at the swing of things on the Duquesne University campus these days to convince you that the Bluff school is one place where football is looking up—one place that is going to be heard from this fall in a far more impressive manner than has been the case for several years.

Elmer Layden, the new coach, is the answer. This famous fullback member of the immortal "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame is riding alone now, tutoring Duquesne's younger athletes in the strenuous fall sport at which only a couple of years ago he was one of the country's most brilliant stars, but the manner in which he is taking hold of things and the responsive spirit that he has already stirred up among the Duke gridders are clearly indicative of the beginning of the greatest football era in the history of the local institution.

IT IS not to be expected that Layden will perform any immediate miracles. It takes time for a new coach to get his bearings, to teach and establish a new system of play, and to sort out and develop the best of the material at his command. But Layden impresses one as a coach who will "get there" eventually, one who will be able to teach the great Notre Dame system as well as he played it himself, one who will ultimately put Duquesne University on the football map in larger letters than ever before.

In addition, a marked improvement in football conditions at the school is already in evidence as a result of his coming. Color may have been lacking there at times in the past, but there is plenty of it now. That's what a name can mean in the gridiron game. Layden's fame as one of the greatest players of his day, as one of Knute Rockne's finest products, and as a member of the matchless backfield quartet that made the Notre Dame team of a few years ago possibly the strongest of all time, makes him a magnet to the boys on the hill. He has attracted many new students to the school and he has aroused new football ambitions in these and numerous others already enrolled there because they want to play under him, feeling that he represents the idolized Rockne and the Notre Dame style of football which

PARKS HIGHLAND MEDALIST

Samuel M. Parks, Jr., won the medalist honors in the junior championship of the Highland Country Club yesterday when he led the first division with a 76. He scored a pair of 38s in the comperatively large field. George Snodgrass and Edward Snodgrass, Jr., copped the father-and-son event, played in conjunction with the junior tourney, their 72 being two strokes better than the tally registered by Samuel M. Parks, Sr., and Samuel M. Parks, Jr. J. R. Royston and J. S. Royston, who tied at 75.

SEMANS SETS RECORD

Larry Semans of the Uniontown and Nemacolin country clubs, an entrant in the recent national amateur, established a new course record for the Bedford Springs layout when he scored a 73. GRAND BUT TERRIBLE; GERMAN WINS

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The Toronto Globe says today that the swimming marathon won by Ernst Vierkoetter, a German baker, was, at least to the writer of the article, "the most beautiful and the most cruel athletic event he ever witnessed."

"The agony of countenance and the dull, dogged determination of the utterly exhausted swimmers as they summoned every ounce of physical energy and grit within them to crawl on to a possible rich reward, only to crumple up far from the finish, was the other side of the story.

"Out there in the open lake a poor doubled-up creature was hauled up, stiff and motionless, except for the pitiful shivering of his body, and laid, bent up like a jack-knife, in the bottom of the boat."

Mrs. Lottie Schoemmel, New York woman, took defeat harder than any of the other swimmers in the marathon.

After about 16 hours in the water the cold forced her to give up. "Don't bother about me," she sobbed, "I'm just a quitter."

She disdained the hospital and hurriedly dressed for the short journey from the exhibition grounds to her temporary home nearby.

WOMAN IN STUPOR

"Another, a woman, was rowed off the course in apparent stupor. Face ashen and drawn, jaws set, she lurched in the boat, barely able to retain a sitting posture. There were scores like that.

"Some swimmers wanted to quit, and their boatmen wouldn't let them. Others wanted to go on when their last ounce of energy and strength was exhausted, and their boatmen wouldn't let them.

"The old story, in another setting, was used to flag tiring energies, 'Vierkoetter has quit. You're away out in front. Go on; go on; fight; fight!'

"But where spirits would have fought, spent arms refused to be lifted to thrash the blue water for more hours.

"It was grand, and it was terrible."

Only three of some 200 entrants finished: Ernst Vierkoetter, German baker, first; Goros Michel, French baker, second, and William Erickson, of New York, third.

Vierkoetter and Michel, while both bakers, are also both English Channel swimmers. Vierkoetter finished in 11 hours, 42 minutes and 12 seconds, winning the first prize of $50,000. Michel, finishing some three hours later, won the second prize of $7,500. Erickson struggled in the chill waters for nearly 18 hours to win the third prize of $2,500.

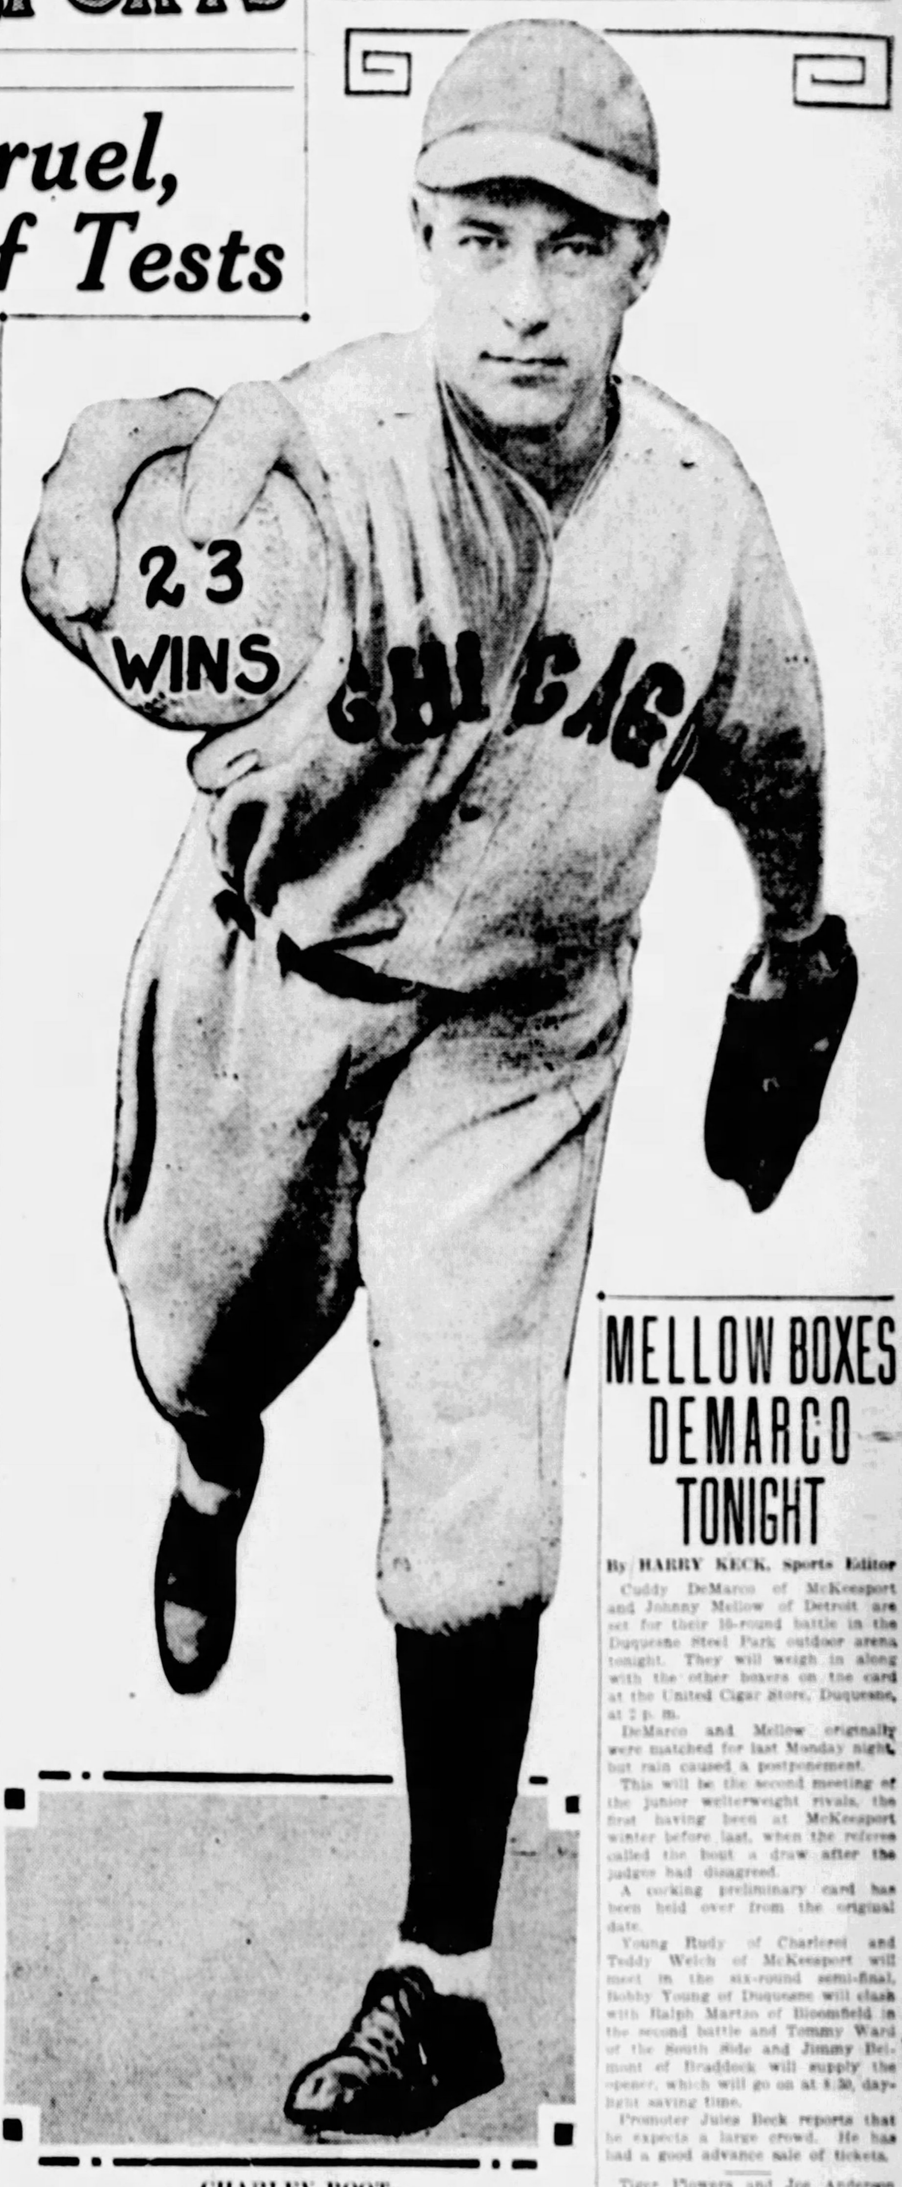
CUBS' BIG GUN



CHARLEY ROOT

Star pitcher of the Cubs, who is counted on to check the Pirates in the crucial game between the clubs with first place at stake at Forbes Field this afternoon. Root has faced the Pirates eight times this season and has a record of four victories and two defeats in this series of battles. He lost his first start against them, won the second, lost in a relief role in the third, figured in two more relief assignments in which he neither was credited with victory nor charged with defeat and has won his last three starts against them. He last faced the Corsairs at Forbes Field, July 8, when he bested Meadows in a duel, 1-0, the only run being scored after a wild throw by Traynor. Meadows will oppose Root again today.

MELLOW BOXES DEMARCO TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

Cuddy DeMarco of McKeesport and Johnny Mellow of Detroit are set for their 10-round battle in the Duquesne Steel Park outdoor arena tonight. They will weigh in along with the other boxers on the card at the United Cigar Store, Duquesne, at 7 p. m.

DeMarco and Mellow originally were matched for last Monday night, but rain caused a postponement.

This will be the second meeting of the junior welterweight rivals, the first having been at McKeesport winter before last, when the referee called the bout a draw after the judges had disagreed.

A corking preliminary card has been held over from the original date.

Young Rudy of Charleroi and Teddy Welch of McKeesport will meet in the six-round semi-final. Bobby Young of Duquesne will clash with Ralph Martin of Bloomfield in the second battle and Tommy Ward of the South Side and Jimmy Belmont of Braddock will supply the opener, which will go on at 8:30, daylight saving time.

Promoter Jules Beck reports that he expects a large crowd. He has had a good advance sale of tickets.

Tiger Flowers and Joe Anderson box the main bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight. Farmer Joe Cooper and Billy Alger meet in another 10-round bout and Kid Lee and Clyde Hull are down for the third feature bout.

Bud Taylor, recognized as bantamweight champion, boxes Midget Smith, the old trial horse of the division, in a 10-round bout at Culver City, Cal., tonight.

MANY LOCAL FANS TO SEE BIG FIGHT

Pittsburgh will be well represented at the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago on September 22, judging by the number of reservations being made on the Motor Square Special. Johnny McGarvey, former matchmaker at Motor Square Garden, who is handling the reservations, is elated over the large number of requests being made by local fight fans.

Besides furnishing the members of the special with choice seats to the heavyweight championship, the train will serve as the hotel quarters during the stay in Chicago. The Motor Square Special will leave Pittsburgh the night before the fight and will start its return trip two hours after the battle is over. The downtown club have chartered an entire car on the special. For reservations call Montrose 4715.

SENATORS BUY HURLER FROM NEW HAVEN CLUB

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 1. (AP.)—The New Haven Eastern League baseball club announces the sale of Paul Hopkins, former Colgate pitcher and lately with New Haven, to the Washington team of the American League for a cash consideration and Pat Loftus, who was farmed out by the Senators to Hartford. Hopkins is a right-hand pitcher.

The deal is to take effect at the close of the Eastern League season.

'MARY ANN' MORAN HERE FOR VISIT

MARY ANN FRANK MORAN is back in town. He's been here since yesterday, but spent the first day visiting with his friends and did not get around to see his "old gang" until today.

Frank is married now, and has his wife and two small daughters with him. Their permanent home is in Los Angeles. Frank is in the mining business and prospering.

The former heavyweight championship contender has had a varied career since he dropped out of the ring game. He spent several years in London and throughout Europe and married an Irish girl in Dublin two days before the Mike McTigue-Battling Siki fight there, back in 1923. In the last few years he has been sports editor of a paper in Havana, Cuba. Now he's on the road to the big money in the mining world.

FOUGHT TWO CHAMPIONS.

Moran fought for the heavyweight title twice. He boxed Jack Johnson over the 20-round route in Paris just before the war broke out in 1914, and two years later he boxed the then new ruler, Jesse Willard, in a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden, New York. He was one of the most popular heavyweights the game has known. His right hand knockout blow was known as "Mary Ann." When it landed solidly his fights were over.

Frank started out in the fight game in Pittsburgh and made a local reputation before going East and boxing Luther McCarthy, Jim Coffey and others in the White Hope Days. He is just as cheerful, blonde and freckle-faced as he ever was, hasn't taken on any weight and looks anything but the part of a man who fought all the best fighters of his time.

Moran plans to remain here until tomorrow night, when he will move on to Chicago to visit Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney in their training quarters and stay there until after the big fight, when he will return to the coast.

Moran expects the Dempsey-Tunney fight to be one of the greatest heavyweight battles in recent years. "This will be the first time in a long while that a former champion will be getting a chance to win back the heavyweight title, and it will be pretty much of a grudge affair," Frank said. "Dempsey, with the Sharkey victory under his belt, will be a harder man to beat, and will be in there punching all the way. His great heart will not permit him to concede defeat, and he'll make a strong bid for a comeback victory."

THE SUCKER GAME

An Expose' of the Pari-Mutuel System, demonstrating that you can't beat the races

by FRANK G. MENKE

(Editor's Note—This is the third of a series of four articles by Mr. Frank G. Menke, well known turf writer and handicapper, and author of books pertaining to the race tracks. The fourth and last will appear tomorrow.)

THE pari-mutuel system in this country calls for the daily sale of from 500 to 75 men for calculating, accounting and similar purposes. Their pay averages $15 daily, meaning a total of $750 a day for a staff of 50 men, or $22,500 per 30-day race meeting.

The Australian machines do the calculating automatically. Thus they null the necessity of these 50 clerks. These machines effect sales three times faster than is done now in the U. S. A., and thus about 10 ticket sellers, at $15 a day each, or $1,500 for the meeting, could be dispensed with.

And that says about $22,500 in ticket printing and kindred expenses. Meaning that the grand total of saving would be $22,500 in track bills. But as in ticket expenses, etc., a grand total of $4,000.

Inasmuch as the Australian device costs around $40,000, it would pay for itself the first year, and after that the track would save $36,000 annually.

Doesn't it seem more than passing strange that the pari-mutuel race tracks of America should refuse to install the Australian machines that would save them $40,000 a year and safeguard the public's money and that they cling to the wicked machines of today which admit the possibility of fraud and theft that can aggregate millions of dollars annually?

HOW AUSTRALIANS PLAY

The Australian method of pari-mutuel wagering does not deal in already printed tickets. And it shows in plain, bold figures at all times exactly how much money has been wagered against each horse, and the grand total that has been wagered. In this way the players know at all times just exactly what a horse will pay in the matter of odds if he wins.

In Australia no tickets are printed in advance of sale, and no tickets are left over for possible cheating purposes after a race has been run. There is no possibility of a calculator stealing $300,000 by theft of tickets after a race has been run, and no chance of entering $4,500 to be played on a winning horse after the race is over.

The Australian device is installed in a big house or office dotted with booths. The player steps up to a booth and states that he wants to make a bet on horse No. 2 in the third race. Thereupon the clerk punches No. 2 button just as he would a button on an adding machine. This act sets the machinery into motion. Immediately another sale is entered on the big total board above the office against horse No. 2 and also another sale is added to the grand total.

While this is happening the machine automatically prints a ticket on which appears "Horse No. 2, third race," and then the date and the name of the track where the wager is made. The entire transaction is completed in about two seconds.

When the horses reach the starting barrier a bell rings and the machines are automatically locked. The King of England couldn't get another ticket out of that machine on that particular race.

The total board, always in plain view, tells the story of the betting. The players can figure out the exact odds to the last sixpence. For all they need to do is to deduct from the grand total the percentage which the Australian government permits the track to take, and then divide into the net result the number of tickets sold on each horse.

CAN'T CHEAT ON MACHINE

For instance, if the total amount left in the pool, after the "take" has been deducted, is exactly $50,000 and sorts on ticket has been sold on the winning horse, the holder of that ticket knows he will get the entire pot that goes to the winner. If two tickets are sold then each holder knows he will get half. If 10 tickets are sold then each ticket holder is entitled to one-tenth.

But how vastly different is the American method of wicked Mutuels, whereby the public must trust implicitly in the probity, honesty and honesty of officials or clerks and where $1,000,000 can be stolen from the public without the public really knowing it or being able to prove it if it but knowing.

In this country all tickets are printed in advance. Even at the smallest track, it is accorded by chance that dishonest printers will do some stealing. For a printer could print up to 10 or 20 or 50 extra tickets on each horse in each race and pocket them. Then, when each race was over, he could discard the losing tickets and cash in the winning ones.

But it's 100 to 1 that such a thing doesn't happen, for in this particular instance the race track folks would be the stealing parties, inasmuch as they would be handling unrecorded tickets. And even if they did not lose points to safeguard the public they do safeguard themselves.

When time arrives for the opening of the betting hours, each ticket seller on the American tracks is given a certain number of tickets on each horse. Let's assume there are 10 horses in the race and that he is given, for sale purposes, 50 of the standardized $2 tickets on each horse. Thus he is entrusted with 500 tickets having a total value of $1,000.

When the horses reach the starting post and the bell rings ending the wagering on that race, the seller must turn over to the collector cash and unsold tickets to balance the $1,000 charged against him. For instance, if he has sold only 250 and taken in only $500, he must turn back 250 unsold tickets with the $500 to balance the $1,000 charge against him.

UNSOLD TICKETS BUGABOO

And in those unsold tickets lurks the opportunity for wholesale cheating of the racing public.

The unsold tickets and the cash are rushed to the calculating office while the race is being run. Very shortly afterward the calculation is concluded. The grand total of the pool is arrived at, the percentage is deducted and then the number of tickets sold on the winner is divided into the grand total to ascertain how much is due each holder of a winning ticket.

Assume that the "pool" was $100,000. Then let the track "cut" 11 per cent. That leaves $89,000 for distribution. Now, if 1,000 tickets were sold on the rule, it means each ticket is worth $89.

But, what is to prevent a thieving official of the pari-mutuel department or a dishonest but deft calculator from grabbing 1,000 tickets on the horse that won after he knows the identity of the winner, slipping and then balancing $1,000

(The fourth and last chapter of this series will appear tomorrow).

ASPINWALL HIGH GRIDDERS TRAIN AT CAMP PHILLIPS

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 1.—Coach A. C. McComb and a squad of boys from the Aspinwall High school are at Camp John M. Phillips, near Kennedy's Mills, for a week's pre-season training in football. Practice sessions are held twice a day. The practice so far has been light, consisting of charging, tackling, blocking, passing and running signals. Practice in formation and in actual play by opposing groups of the squad will be undertaken later in the week.

Hiteman Win As Foes Lose

By TOM BIRKS.

THE sensational defeat of the Homewood County Leaguers at the hands of McKeesport, coupled with Beltzhoover's victory over the North Side Board of Trade, last evening, practically cinched the County League second-half title for the South Hills club.

While the McKinley Park outfit is still required to play Pitcairn at Beltzhoover, there is a decided possibility that the game will not be played, for it is not scheduled as yet.

Homewood blew its chance to force Beltzhoover into a playoff for the second half championship when Jimmy Uchrinsko failed to hold a three-run lead going into the final inning. The former West Newton star was going along in fine style after a poor start, until the fifth inning when three hits placed the Tubers in a good position to pull the game out of the fire.

And despite the fact that Reinie Boll hitted Uchrinsko and rushed Isherwood to the mound, the damage was done. With darkness coming on fast, the East Enders tried hard to get that tying run in the fifth Boll and Weimer being on the sacks when Jimmy Durkin forced Boll at third for the final out. In the meantime, Beltzhoover was fighting hard to overcome a 7-to-2 lead held by the North Side Traders at McKinley Park, and turned the trick in the final inning. So unless the Pitcairners astound sandlotters by traveling to Beltzhoover and beating the Hite aggregation, the post-season classic for the championship of the Allegheny County League will be fought by Bellevue and Beltzhoover.

WORLD TOUR PLANNED BY GENE AFTER BOUT

CHICAGO, Sept. 1. (AP.)—Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, has announced that the heavyweight champion will tour the world following his fight with Jack Dempsey here September 22. The tour will be made win, lose or draw, he said.

"Gene will be accompanied by his pal and confidant, Eddie Egan, former heavyweight champion of Yale and an Oxford scholar," Gibson said. "Several members of British royalty, now living in London, are partly responsible for the champion's decision to girdle the globe. Hunting of wild animals in Africa and an extended visit to the continent will be part of the schedule, which is still in embryo."

SIX-GAME GRID SCHEDULE FACES PANTHER FRESHIES

The football schedule of the Pitt freshmen for this fall has just been completed. Coach Red Carlson's proteges will play six games, as follows:

TENNIS FINALE POSTPONED

Anna Wicket of West Park, the defending champion, and Florence Schneider of Schenley Park, battling for the championship in the inter-park tennis tournament, struggled to a deadlock in two sets and were forced to abandon the deciding engagement until Saturday because of darkness, in the final round started on the West Park courts yesterday. Miss Wicket won the first set 7-5 and Miss Schneider the second, 6-4. Margaret Artz, referee, postponed the last set when she decided it was too dark to continue. The match will be resumed on the West Park court at 7 o'clock Saturday night.

The annual junior tennis championship of the Coraopolis Y. M. C. A. for singles will begin on its courts Saturday at 10 o'clock in the morning.

The Beaver Valley singles and doubles tennis titles will be at stake starting Labor Day when the annual championships will begin on the Geneva College courts under the auspices of the College Hill Tennis Association.

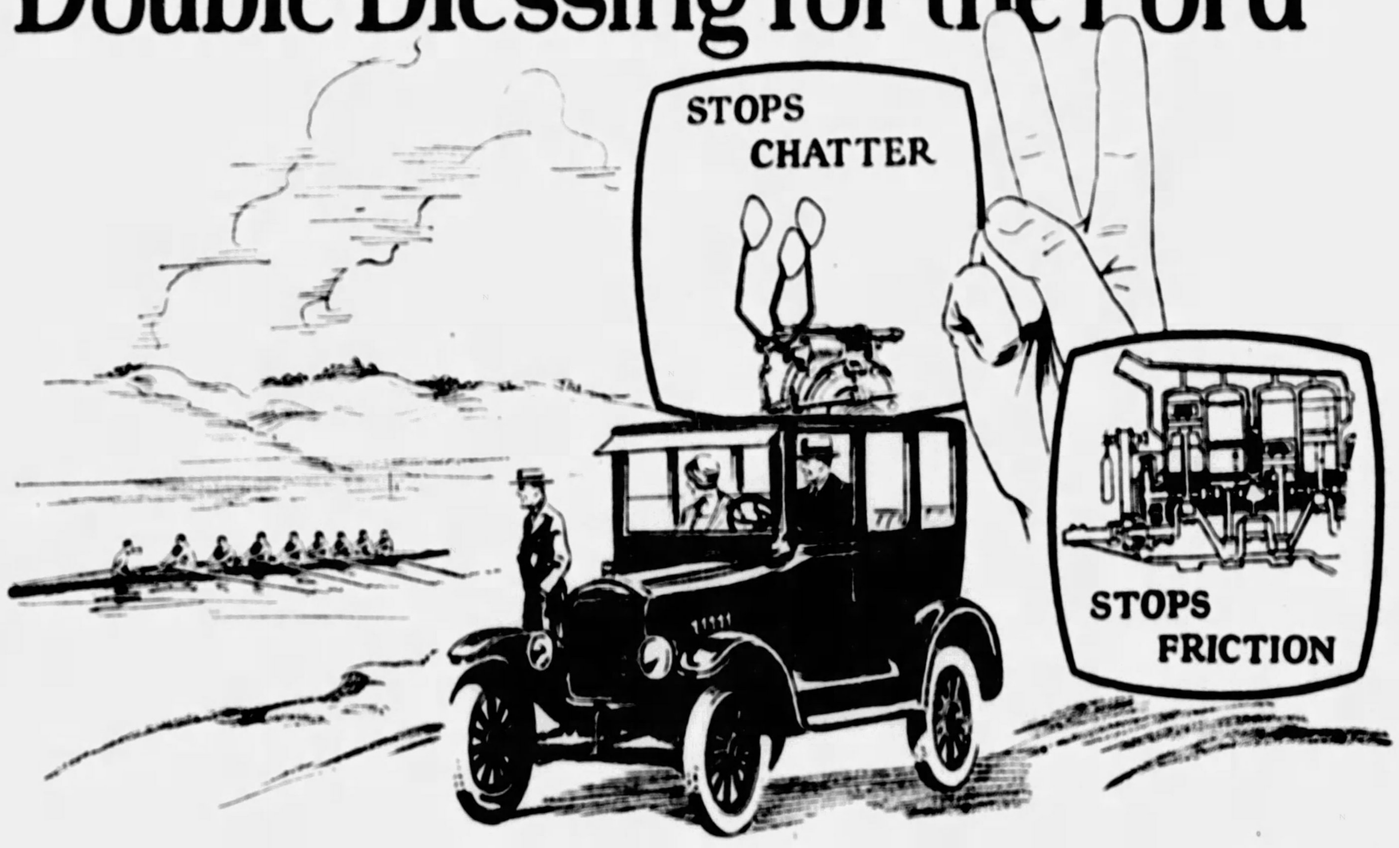
Thin-Thick Has Proved a Double Blessing for the Ford



Does Two Jobs-and Does'em Well!

WAVERLY Thin-Thick performs the work of two entirely different types of Ford oils because it is actually a two-in-one lubricant—the only product of its kind. Thin and penetrating in the transmission, it positively stops "chatter" and "clutch drag" by softening and preserving the bands. In the motor, it is thick—the terrific heat of the engine cannot "break it down." It quiets your motor because its heavy protecting film coats the bearings and insures perfect piston seal.

Thin-Thick does not eliminate one trouble at the expense of another, nor does it contain any valve pitting, carbon-forming element. It is essentially a dual-purpose lubricant, perfectly suited for use in the Ford. The discovery of Thin-Thick was the result of years of experimentation. It is produced from pure Pennsylvania petroleum by an exclusive Waverly process. Drain your crankcase and keep it filled with Thin-Thick—it means new comfort for you—longer life for your car.

Notables of World to Attend Fight

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—The Herald-Examiner today says it has been shown the official list of reservations for the Dempsey-Tunney fight, revealing a distinguished company will attend the battle.

Heading the list, the paper says, is Princess Xenia of Greece and her American husband, William B. Leeds, Jr., son of the tin plate manufacturer. Others included are Govs. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland; J. E. Martineau, of Arkansas; Fred W. Green, of Michigan; John Hamill, of Iowa; J. H. Trumbull, of Connecticut; J. W. Martin, of Florida; A. H. Moore, of New Jersey, and Len Small, of Illinois.

The paper named the following mayors: James Walker, New York; J. W. Smith, Detroit; Victor Miller, St. Louis; G. E. Cryer, Los Angeles; W. F. Kendrick, Philadelphia; Arthur O'Keefe, New Orleans; Arthur Will, Louisville, and G. E. Leach, Minneapolis.

Industrial leaders named by the paper included several railroad presidents, manufacturers and others, among them being Clarence Mackay, Bernard Baruch, Percy Rockefeller, Hale Holden, Charles M. Schwab and J. J. Bernet.

Movie stars included in the list, the paper says, were Douglas Fairbanks, Norma Talmadge, Mary Pickford, John Barrymore, Charlie Chaplin, Will Rogers, Gloria Swanson, Buster Keaton, Thomas Meighan, Rod La Rocque and Tom Mix.

BOGGIE, the clever left-winger who played a big part in the success of the Pittsburgh Club last season, will be playing with the National amateur champions at Heidelberg this season. Manager Balsurin gave out this news last evening. The green and gold mentor made another re-strike when he signed young Villani, last season the star performer on John Dresnich's Cadet team.

The Breuer-Mellusky combination should cause halfbacks much worry in this district. Both are fast, and when Johnny learns to draw the opposition and then flash the ball outside some of the defenses in this district are going to be run to death.

There will be practice for the Pittsburgh Celtics this evening, according to Manager Edwards. All players should report at the engine house at Thirty-Sixth street, at 7:30 o'clock. The Celtics are also looking for a game away from home this week-end.

Ruff Donnelli, the Duquesne University player, will be with Heidelberg this season. This morning Kusis and Donnelli will alternate playing inside right with Bill O'Hagan, left back at center forward. Ruff should have a good season if he retains his shooting boots.

Long's Comment Column

they have come to consider the greatest in the land.

THIS is evident from the fact that the squad now out daily for preliminary practice is the largest that Duquesne ever knew. Yesterday there were no fewer than 74 men on the field. First, Layden held "school" and put the numerous candidates through their initial skull practice, and later, in addition to the usual limbering up exercises and fundamental stunts he gave his charges their opening work against the bucking board.

And even at this early stage it can be seen that there is improved quality as well as greater quantity to the squad, for quite a few boys who have stood out on various high school teams in this section in recent years are among those trying for places on the team that will represent Duquesne this season in the hard schedule that is made up of games with St. Bonaventure, Broaddus, Geneva, Bethany, Thiel, Westminster, St. Francis, and Ashland.

BUT previous high school reputations are not going to count for anything with Layden. He made that clear while discussing the Duke outlook after yesterday's drill and before hurrying to Brookline on a house-hunting expedition preliminary to bringing his wife and seven-week-old baby here from Davenport.

"Sometimes these previous high school reputations do not work out for the good of a boy who is about to learn a new system," said the new Duquesne coach. "He imagines that he knows a great deal about football and may be inclined to try to do things in his own way, or in the way in which he has been taught fundamentally, and this may not fit in at all with what he now must learn. The result is that it is hard to get the best results out of him.

"For that reason I often prefer to work with comparatively raw material. The boy who has not been filled up with other things and who has not developed an exaggerated idea of his individual ability is frequently a better prospect. He starts in with an open mind, has nothing to unlearn, and will more readily grasp and absorb what a new coach is trying to teach him.

"OF COURSE, it is entirely too early for me to attempt to say how our team is likely to be constructed or how it is going to shape up. To me at this time there are merely 74 boys out there on the field. I might say that I do not even know the names of the great majority of them. I must go along slowly in the weeding out process. My first step is to start 44 boys, or four teams, working at one time, to make changes wherever they appear advisable while we are going through the fundamentals and work up gradually to the scrimmage practice before thinking of making any selections.

"Even then various changes for this or that position on the scrimmaging teams will not be final. For instance, if I take 22 boys to Akron for our first game with Bucknell on September 24 that will not mean that I have definitely selected the first team or the first squad. A player who looks good at first in one department may prove so weak in another as to warrant a change.

"THERE where spectators and others not in touch with the inside workings of a team frequently make mistakes. They may see a certain player sent in late in the game who has made some sensational runs and will immediately set up the cry that that player ought to be used regularly, unmindful of the fact that the substitute player would not have made those runs if the first team had not previously worn down the opposing eleven almost to the point of exhaustion.

"Again, a fine ball-carrying halfback who looks like a star from the sidelines when he is dashing down the field may be utterly worthless as an interferer or in some of the other duties of a man playing that position.

"SO YOU will see that we must go slowly about picking our men. We want the players who are strongest all around, the best in the various departments combined, and it is going to take some time to do that, just as it is going to take some time to get the best results for Duquesne in the matter of building a winning team.

"But they are a fine lot of boys, and the school spirit is equal to the best to be found anywhere, so I feel sure that we shall succeed eventually. A winning football team cannot be made in a day or a week or a month, and sometimes not in a single season.

"NATURALLY, I am going to employ the Notre Dame system. That's the kind of game we shall play in all departments.

"Forward passing? Certainly we shall include that, but it cannot be developed to a hurry because there is a great deal more to it than would appear on the surface. Like all other teams, we are going to experiment with the lateral pass, too, under the protection provided by the new rules, and, also like other teams, we are going to work out a special defense for it.

"I am not strongly in favor of the other new rule that prohibits a player on the kicking side from rushing with a recovered ball after a fumbled kick. A player who is wide awake and alert enough to be on the spot and grab a fumbled kick ought to be given all he can get as a reward for his good play. Such things are breaks and what would any sport be without breaks.

"I AM going to use the shift play in spite of the one-second rule. I will never give it up.

"I am sorry that the rule-makers changed the code at all. The game was good enough as it was."

Layden said that Coach Rockne and the Notre Dame players had no excuse to offer for their defeat here at the hands of Carnegie Tech last year. "They gave Carnegie all the credit in the world," he said.

The new Duke coach recalled that he played his first game at fullback for Notre Dame against Carnegie Tech in 1922, when he was called in to relieve Paul Castner. He played here also in 1924 against Carnegie, but was on the injured list in 1926 and did not play in Pittsburgh. He missed the game against Army in 1925 on the bordeaux in which he was injured.

DENIES W. & L. E. CONTROL KILLS COMPETITION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Denial that control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad through interlocking directorates of the New York Central, Nickel Plate and Baltimore and Ohio would lessen competition among Eastern railroads was made in a brief filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the Baltimore and Ohio.

The three major lines already own 51 per cent of the stock of the Wheeling and Lake Erie, and officers of the New York Central, the Baltimore and Ohio and the Nickel Plate have applied for authority to serve as directors of the Wheeling.

The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and the Wabash opposed the applications on the ground that such a four-system operation would be destructive to competition, while the former has sought authority to acquire the Wheeling itself.

"Though competition exists between the Wheeling and Lake Erie and the Baltimore and Ohio, there is no evidence of an attempt or intent to suppress that competition," the Baltimore and Ohio brief said, adding that, on the contrary, "competition between the two railroads has been increased."

Assuming that competition between the Baltimore and Ohio and Wheeling might be wholly suppressed, the brief declared there would "still remain competition between the Baltimore and Ohio and other railroads at all important points, and also competition between the Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central and Nickel Plate."

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—With most speculators hesitant to put a definite construction on unofficial monthly domestic crop estimates issued being small price losses in advance. Bearish crop figures from Canada had a restraining influence on the Board of Trade. Liverpool quotations on wheat were higher than due and export business was fair with 200,000 bushels bought here for shipment to Europe via Montreal.

Wheat closed firm, ½ to 1¼c net higher; corn, ¼ to 1½c up; oats unchanged to ¼c off, and provisions at declines varying from 2c decline to a rise of 10c.

A general buying rush today on the part of previous sellers of wheat followed issuance of monthly private crop estimates. An average of the estimates pointed to outlined production of 860,000,000 bushels, comparing with 759,000,000 bushels of spring wheat as against 208,000,000 bushels indicated by that month's government note. Furthermore, the prevailing reports were only to little moment, entered the pens of domestic winter wheat.

Some buying of corn today was based on an unofficial forecast of severe frost beginning in the Canadian northwest and extending so far south as Iowa by September 15. Shorts, with which destruction have today on September contracts were alternated counted as a talking influence on all grain.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The raw sugar market was slightly more active today and prices advanced 1-32 of a cent to the basis of 4.5c for Cuban duty paid, sales included 82,000 bags of Cubas at 4.5c, and 18,000 bags of Philippines at 4.47c late yesterday, and today about 14,000 bags of Philippines and 25,000 bags of Cubas at 4.47c, for prompt and September shipment.

The granular sugar market and higher London values were responsible for a renewal of covering and outside buying in both sugar futures. Prices showed net gains of 4 to 6 points. Offerings increased on the upturn, however, and the market was fairly active, receiving with the market at noontime 1 to 4 points net higher.

Refined sugar was firmer influenced to the higher cost of raws, with prices unchanged to 10 points higher and five grades listed quoted from 5.30 to 5.60.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Quiet again prevailed in the bond market today, with prices holding firm despite limited demand. High grade rail and industrial mortgages were very inactive, but continued to hold close to their high prices of the year. A few semi-speculative mortgages were offered rather freely, particularly the Erie "D" 4s, which lost more than a point.

Third Avenue Adjustment 5s, which were under heavy pressure in the last two or three sessions, rallied slightly, moving up to 61¾. There was some buying of Missouri Pacific 5s around 99¾, but later the fractional gain was wiped out. Hudson and Manhattan 5s changed hands in small volume at their previous peak for the year.

Foreign obligations were inactive on the whole. French issues failed to continue their upward movement, with the exception of one or two railway liens which scored fractional gains on small volume of business.

United States government securities displayed firm tendencies, but transactions were few.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, unless otherwise noted, dollars omitted (Unless otherwise noted, bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

BUGS BAER Says

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

DON'T wink with both eyes!

New York traffic officials claim that most crossing accidents are due to flirtations.

This is important enough to be true.

Officials claim that when a motor sheik toots his horn some girls think they are being paged.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

The language of the indictment is harsh, but sincere: "When an autoist flirts with her, a girl thinks she is a Sheba and has all the other girls jealous. So she steps right out into traffic and is knocked for a round trip."

You cannot blame a sweet pedestrian for thinking that youth and beauty will conquer west-bound traffic. But calling a girl a Sheba is an indication that our officials are not up on their ancient hysteria.

Sheba had all the better of it. When she called on King Solomon there was no traffic but Ben Hur racing around in a business chariot. The girls had things their own way in the old days.

When Paris saw Helen, he gave her the apple. Now Paris is New York, and all Helen gets is the applesauce.

But it is not the girls who start the flirtation business on street crossings. Did you ever pipe the cars lined up on the avenue?

There are generally about 20 of them, and every driver has his head stuck out of the window like a bird in a cage. He is looking around to see what he can see.

They are the guys who should be arrested by the traffic cops. If a girl nods her head to a chauffeur in a limousine, that is where the accident occurs.

Some Arab in a cheaper caravan gets sore and knocks her down. And she generally marries a handsome inferno who took her for a ride in an ambulance.

There was a time when a fellow could walk along the main street and get his share of reciprocal smiles. Now flirtation is strictly an automobile industry.

An it's time the police stepped in and gave us sore-footed walkers a chance.

"You Said It, Marceline"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

On "Falling and Slipping in Love."

A girl often WONDERS, when with her LOVER, why
She did not RECOGNIZE him as her mate
On sight, For SOME girls know a MAN many Months before they find his FATAL CHARM,
To fall in LOVE at FIRST SIGHT is heavenly.
It's so DIVINE, But to take one's time
Over it and SLIP into it gradually
Has, also, its own PECULIAR ADVANTAGES,
Foor instances, to FALL VIOLENTLY for another—
Hurts. And those who GO DOWN with a wallop are Likely to get up BRUISED and SHAKEN. Of Course, if BOTH FALL at once, that's different!
But those who SLIP from friendship into LOVE are best off, for should LOVE fall off as
The years go by, they can then SLIP without Dang back into the old FAMILIAR ways of FRIENDSHIP.

Mussolini's Latest

The Eagles Are Taken From Napoleon

MUSSOLINI WITH EAGLES ABOVE HIM.

This, the latest portrait of Mussolini, Italy's powerful ruler the great outstanding figure among the strong men of Europe, was painted by Professor Giuseppe Palanti, of Milan.

Mussolini is seen in a typical Italian landscape, with ancient ruins in the background.

Most interesting are the eagles shown flying above the head of Italy's Prime Minister and ruler.

Those eagles are the indication of power. The artist may have borrowed them from their constant association with Napoleon.

When he crossed the Alps in Winter, the first man to cross from France into Italy, the artist showed him with an eagle flying above his head, and underneath he put the words: "The Eagle, the Guide."

Napoleon's eagles, of course, were taken from the ancient eagles that marched at the head of the Roman fighters of Caesar's day and before.

The Italian artist has called back these eagles to decorate the portrait of Mussolini.

Mussolini, in turn, is determined to do for Italy what Napoleon did for France, and more.

He intends to restore the grandeur of the ancient Roman Empire. He is laying his plans east of the Adriatic and far away in the Far East.

If his life is spared and his energies endure, there is no limit that can be set to what this man may accomplish by the use of absolute power and unlimited ambition.

And think how we change. Only a few years ago this same man belonged to the extreme radical end of Italy's Socialist party. He was opposed to wealth and power in any individual, demanding that everything be done by the people and by their will.

Today he says to the people, "MINE IS THE WILL, and yours is the duty to obey and carry out the plans that I form."

Circumstances change us, and, as Napoleon said, some of us change CIRCUMSTANCES.

Napoleon said, "Circumstances, I MAKE circumstances."

And Mussolini declares that he will make circumstances and make a NEW AND A GREATER ITALIAN ROMAN EMPIRE.

"Accidents Will Happen" No Sign of Defeat

Much that is of benefit to those engaged in hazardous occupations is certain to result from the three-day first aid and mine rescue contest. Awarding medals and other trophies, a banquet in Syria Mosque tonight will be the climax of a commendable effort in the direction of saving lives and caring for those injured while at work.

The sponsors of the demonstrations, participated in by teams from a score of states, are men with a noble purpose. They don't believe the old saying, "accidents will happen," is to be accepted as a sign of defeat. They do believe that many accidents are preventable. But when they do happen they want to be prepared to minimize serious results as much as possible.

We have been a long time in getting to the point of preparedness which now exists. To reach it has required research and administrative policies of federal and state governments, corporations and individuals. It is an economic work as well as one of mercy. Accidents are unprofitable. Loss of manpower is a serious blow to any community.

Men are being trained in ever increasing numbers to relieve victims of accidents in mines and other industries. That they have been well trained has been wonderfully demonstrated here at this meeting. They constitute an important branch of our modern army of mercy.

Goebel's Will Power

Arthur Goebel's victory with the Woolaroc in the flight to Hawaii is another proof that where there's a will there's somehow a way.

It was due solely to his indomitable refusal to be balked that he got the chance to make this flight. Like Lindbergh, he could not be resisted.

You find that streak in most of the successes of life. The type of spirit which whets its edge on repeated disappointments and persists is the one that wins.

Distance Under the Blade

Eight hours to Chicago, 53½ to San Francisco or Los Angeles, will be the flight time from New York for air express parcels when the service begins in September. The cost will be a third of air mail postage.

These are initial figures. Both time and cost will undoubtedly shrink as the service grows. Distance isn't as yet entirely annihilated but it is being closely shaved.

DUE FOR A TRIMMING

Garret P Serviss Says:

How Do You Sleep?

"I contend from my personal experience that it makes a difference to health in which way one sleeps. In other words, to which direction the head or feet should be while sleeping. Is it only imagination or is there really something in it?—F. A. B."

THERE is something in it for you, even if you only imagine the effect. Our health and comfort are much more dependent upon the workings of the imagination than many persons ever suspect.

There are a number of interesting considerations to be taken into account on this subject. For instance, owing to centrifugal force from the earth's rotation, all bodies have a tendency to slide toward the Equator. This tendency, however, is balanced by the oblate form of the globe, which, as a whole, has taken a shape conforming to the forces acting upon it. But if you were sleeping with your head to the north and the earth's rotation suddenly ceased, there would, theoretically, at least, be a rush of blood toward your head, which might be uncomfortable, just as, as has often been said, the Gulf of Mexico would run up the Mississippi Valley under similar circumstances. Of course, there would be other consequences from such a stoppage.

This has some relation to the case of a sleeping car. I believe it is the prevailing custom to place the head of the bed toward the engine. In that situation the blood must tend away from the head when the train starts or accelerates its speed, and toward the head when it slows up or stops. Some persons studying this situation prefer to have the head pointed toward the rear of the train. While there must be some difference of effect I know no decisive reason for choosing, in general, one position rather than the other. But, upon the whole, the feet-first position would seem to me slightly preferable, because a sudden application of the brakes is not then attended by a rush of blood to the head.

But the smoothly rotating earth is not—or at least in historic times has not been—subject to noticeable eccentricities of motion, so that it cannot have any serious effect upon the circulation of the bodily fluid, whether you sleep with your head north, south, east or west.

There is, however, another thing which meticulous persons may consider as of possible importance. That is the direction of flow of the earth's magnetic currents. So it may not illogically be assumed that there should be some difference in the effect upon delicate nerves whether you sleep with the body lying parallel to or across the magnetic lines.

Call the Doctor

HAVE you many imaginary ills? Are you always "taking something" when you get those imaginary as well as real symptoms of certain diseases.

You have no particular ailment, but when you do not feel good you go to your medicine chest and take something, because you are out of sorts.

Under such circumstances what you take may act contrary to what you expect.

Perhaps you get a certain relief when you take a particular remedy, but do you know whether it meets the root of your trouble?

There are medicines that deaden pain.

Pain is a symptom of trouble that you ought to trace. Get at the real cause, don't silence the voice of protest sent out by your physical being.

Don't get the habit of taking something recommended by a friend or acquaintance.

When you need medicine, consult a physician.

Don't try to be your own doctor.

"Just In Time"

LONG ago I used to revel in the splendors of the stage, all the wonders it could picture, life in every clime and age. And the tales that it unfolded—fanciful, grotesque, sublime—but with help for every trouble always coming just in time! Much I've learned of earth's old teachings since those distant, carefree days and I find life's stage men tread on like the mimic stage's ways. Have you noted how it happens, always coming just in time, something that can bring you gladness, that can make joy's sweet bells chime? Care and sorrow may connect you, roads to all too steep to climb; but be sure some means of succor will be granted, just in time!

Ye Towne Gossip

by K. C. B.

SHE HAD spent some days

WITH A young girl friend

AND HAD come home

AND THE first thing she did

WAS COME to me

AND WANT to know

WHAT OUR car cost.

AND SHE seemed pleased

AND WENT to the phone

AND CALLED her friend,

AND SAID to her

"MY DADDY says

"THAT OUR car

"COST MORE than your car

"AND I know it did.

"AND DON'T let's quarrel

"ANY MORE about it."

AND WHATEVER the voice

AT THE other end said

I COULDN'T hear.

FOR RIGHT away

OUR GIRL stiffened up.

AND SAID quite loudly

RIGHT INTO the phone,

"YOU'RE CRAZY yourself,

"AND SO is your father,

"IF HE says your car

"IS BETTER than ours."

AND SHE turned to me,

WHILE SHE held the phone,

AND EXCLAIMED to me,

"WILL YOU listen to that?

"SHE SAYS you're crazy!"

I CONSIDERED it

MY PARENTAL duty

TO THEN and there

END THE conversation.

SHE STARTED to cry

THE WHILE I told her

HOW FOOLISH it was

FOR GIRLS to quarrel

OVER THINGS like that.

AND AS she left

SHE TURNED and said,

"BUT PLEASE just say

"OUR CAR is the best."

AND I replied

THAT IT certainly was.

AND IF the other girl's father

THINKS ANY different,

I'LL PROVE it to him.

I THANK YOU.

Engineers Wanted

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The nation is confronted with something to be done.

We haven't any policy to decide, there is no cause for argument. Everybody knows just exactly what is the matter and everybody knows that competent and reliable people should do the job.

The lower Mississippi Valley was visited with one of the most severe disasters in history, thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed and thousands of people injured is the toll. There is no question about this. It is just simply an unpleasant fact and one that has to be dealt with effectively.

Another disaster looms as a tragic possibility in the Imperial Valley. That Valley is a natural depression which has been redeemed by the energy of man from being an uninhabitable desert until it is now one of the most fertile garden spots of the world. Immense sums of money and an army of people are there.

At any time the Colorado River may rise and wipe out the whole affair. That calamity will be measured only by that of the Mississippi Valley.

Something must be done.

We don't need to appoint people who will represent Wall street, nor the farmers of the West, nor the interests of Arizona, nor anybody else.

We want representatives of the whole nation, men who will be anxious to receive the plaudits not only of a certain number of the people, but of all the people.

We don't want good Republicans nor time-tried Democrats.

We don't want vote-getters nor men of great popularity. We want just one king of a man.

We want the man who has done things and can do things, a man who can get results and keep his mouth shut.

We want an engineer, a practical business man, not a statesman.

Statesmen may have their places, but let them go to the Senate or the House, or hire a hall. This is no time for talk.

Fortunately we have one who has demonstrated his ability by doing other things of a delicate nature and doing them successfully, a man who is available and willing to take the job.

All we need is for the politicians to lay off for a few minutes while we hire this general manager.

His name is Herbert Hoover. He has done and is doing and can do great things.

He does not play politics nor perform for the galleries. All his life he has been getting things done, performing one big task after another successfully. Why isn't there sense enough in the American people to put this man on the job of properly harnessing the Colorado and Mississippi rivers?—give him a free hand and plenty of money and tell him to go to it!

There is no danger; we know him; he is safe.

Isn't It So?

Education should teach a man to live easily, instead of driving him into nervous prostration in a mad scramble for wealth.

Some of the newly rich stay that way, and some feel an urge to own some race horses.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Manhattan is said to have more than one hundred idle millionaire bachelors. Their job is to cling to celibacy. A thousand mothers with eligible daughters are angling for each. Few are listed in the telephone books.

Some have sequestered apartments whose locations are known only to their intimates andtheir entertaining is done chiefly in public cafes. They are wise to the hundred and one blackmailing traps set in an effort to shake them down.

Several years ago a beguiling damsel became a social secretary to one of the celibants. She was the tool of a dangerous crew. He responded to her pretty flatteries with cool indifference—so much so that woman-like she fell desperately in love with him.

Then one day during an impulsive moment she told him of her part in the plot and resigned. As the story goes it first stirred his sympathy, then his interest. He was much older and he adopted her as his daughter. She lives today in European splendor.

The rich New York bachelor may be stingy in his affairs of heart, but his generosity is often pronounced in unobtrusive ways. One grand opera star owes her musical training and fame to the charitable whim of one. Many other girls have been educated abroad at their expense with no strings attached.

There is that story of one girl who was given a generous allowance and climbed to the heights of musical comedy stardom. Her benefactor made only one request and that was that she never reveal the source of her benefactions. He was in an open stage box on the opening night of her first starring role.

Responding to encore after encore she finally turned and blew a kiss at him. Every head turned his way. He never spoke to her again. Rich bachelors are often lonely. I have frequently seen one of the richest New York bachelors, now dead, browsing to bell boys and clerks in an apparent effort to relieve the monotony of his isolation.

In the effort to be Helpful in A Great Big Way it might not be amiss to record that about the richest bachelor in New York wears a toupee, false uppers and uses a toothpick behind a napkin.

A slight invasion of woman's rights is noted in one of those luxurious black-long buses traveling to a nearby city and bearing the sign: "Ladies will please not smoke until the city limits are passed."

Lower Fifth avenue's Bolsheviki boulevard is a stirring section around noon-time, when factory lofts erupt their hordes. Scores of hawkers are here with their portable supply of edible gimcracks—dill pickles, potatoes on a stick, giant pretzels, salami, raw cabbage and colored drinks.

Foreign language newspapers are out with glaring headlined extras, usually featuring some recent phase of affairs in Russia. Full-bosomed young girls with red cheeks and cherry lips thrill to window shopping northward.

The young cutters with slight mustaches and smart clothes are also on promenade. Then there are the old men with beards who walk slowly along the curbs with hands folded behind and their eyes still alight with old-world wonder at the new—its customs, its manners.

Frequently some zealot mounts a soap-box to demand fuller rights for workers. But his reception is without enthusiasm. Most of these workers have prospered beyond wildest dreams. They listen, but are quite content.

This morning four people, all truthful, told me the details of a sensational cafe brawl last night. All the stories differed—which is heartening to an observer frequently rebuked for unintentional inaccuracies.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

HIGHLY elated, Edison took his new invention to the offices of the Scientific American in New York. When his phonograph had recited and reproduced "Mary Had a Little Lamb" over and over, a big crowd had gathered in the room and the floor was in danger of collapse. The morning papers were full of the event.

AFTER several larger and better machines were made, Edison had an exhibit of the phonograph at Menlo Park, to which thousands of the curious flocked from all points of the compass. So great was the interest in this almost uncanny device that the Pennsylvania Railroad ran special trains to accommodate the crowds.

URGED by telegraph to come to Washington, Edison gave an exhibition to many members of Congress and other notables. About 11 o'clock at night President Hayes invited Edison to the White House, where interest in the new invention was so intense that he did not leave until 3:30 o'clock the next morning.

THIS is Edison's original phonograph, now in the South Kensington Museum, London. By means of a recording needle attached to a diaphragm, indentations were made in tinfoil wrapped around the cylinder, which was rotated by hand. By resetting the needle, reproduction was accomplished. (Continued Tomorrow.)
